Progress of Events—Full Details of Prim's Early Movements—Prussia Still Reticent—Press Opinions.

PARIS, July 8.—The Spanish question still causes much uneasiness, though the feeling this morning is somewhat more assuring than on last evening. There were transactions at the Bourse at 11 o'clock last night—rentes touching 70 francs, 14 centimes, the lowest figures that have been made for years. The Bourse opened a shade firmer this morning. Rentes 70 francs 35 centimes. The Constitutionnel (Imperial organ) announces, today, that Señor OLOZAGA, the Spanish Minister, has received instructions from Spain to give official notice to the French Government of the candidature of the Prince LEOPOLD, of Hohenzollern. The Constitutionnel adds, that when France becomes convinced of the persistence of Spain in this matter she will terminate diplomatic relations with her. No definite intelligence has been received from Prussia, but France will not be content with the evasive declarations of Count VON BISMARCK. Prussia ought, in the interest of the peace of Europe, to withhold consent for the HOHENZOLLERN to sit upon the throne of Spain. From the various semi-official journals, this morning, are gathered the following details touching the candidature of the Prince of HOHENZOLLERN: Gen. PRIM meant hostility when the Spanish Government notified the Great Powers of Europe of HOHENZOLLERN'S candidature. On the 3d of July, Gen. PRIM advised Señor OLOZAGA, the Spanish Minister here, that he (PRIM) had chosen Prince LEOPOLD; that the Spanish Ministry felt assured that the French Government would object to it, but that he depended upon the higher sentiments of the Emperor. This proves that Gen. PRIM meant to act without the consent of the latter. France has communicated with the other Powers of Europe, and in all cases has received words of sympathy. All she now seeks at Berlin and Madrid is to prevent political complication. The dispatch recently forwarded to the Spanish Government by the Duke of GRAMMONT, has been made public today. The Duke says France hopes Spain will renounce the only candidate for the throne, who is altogether disagreeable. He recalls the services of the French Government in Spanish affairs, by interdicting plots and arresting invading Carlists. He also urges the fact that France aided Spain in the establishment of the Provincial Government. No answer has as yet been received from Prussia since the declaration of the Secretary of Foreign Affairs in the Corps Legislatif a few days ago. On the morning of that day, however, a dispatch was received from Prussia to the effect that that Government knew nothing of the candidature of Prince HOHENZOLLERN for the throne of Spain. A report which seems to be well founded, is in circulation here, that the Prussian Minister of War has ordered all the general officers of the Prussian Army to rejoin their corps without delay. The Memorial Diplomatique says a French circular has been issued defining the situation. The Madrid Discusion has an article on the throne question, today, wherein it says: "Prince HOHENZOLLERN'S qualifications are indisputable. A beggar himself, he comes to rule a nation of beggars." The Speyer (Bavaria) Gazette says: "After all, he is more BONAPARTE than a HOHENZOLLERN."

The Question in the French Senate—The Great Powers in Conference—Military Activity—Leopold's Explanation—Montpensier Favors the Prince.

PARIS, July 8—Later.—In the Senate interpellations have been submitted on the Hohenzollern affair, and the 15th inst. has been fixed as the day for their discussion. Señor OLOZAGA, the Spanish Ambassador, goes to-night to Madrid to endeavor to make an arrangement which will satisfy all parties. The Ambassadors of Austria, England and Italy had a conference today with the Duke DE GRAMMONT. They seem to be favorable to France. The Russian Minister was received today by the Duke DE GRAMMONT. The Emperor held a conference this morning with the Ministers of War, Navy, and Justice. Military measures are already mentioned. Two corps d'armée are to be made ready for immediate movement. Marshal BAZAINE will command one, and Gen. LEBRUN the other. Marshal MACMAHON will have an army, and Gen. LEDOUX, will be intrusted with an important command, while Count PALIKAO will take command of the troops which are to operate against Spain. Active preparations are going on at the seaports. One of the many reports in circulation about Prince LEOPOLD says he refused PRIM's offer of the Crown twice, but his sister, the Duchess of FLANDERS, induced him finally to accept it. It is feared, if this should prove true, that Belgium will be drawn into the conflict. A report has reached here from Madrid that the Duke of MONTPENSIER has ordered his adherents not to oppose the Prince of HOHENZOLLERN. The Press of Madrid is divided on the question of Prince LEOPOLD'S candidacy for the throne. The Epoca opposes his elevation, but at the same time complains of France, because she acts as if the Cortes was in nowise engaged to take care of the dignity and interests of Spain. The Pueblo warns the country that this candidacy may serve as a pretext for war between France and Prussia, in which event Spain will be the victim. The Iberia fully approves Gen. PRIM'S policy. The Correspondencia announces by authority that the Cortes will meet on the 20th of the present month. The Nacion gives notice that a demonstration will be made on Sunday against all foreign candidates for the throne.

Austria Declines to be Drawn into the Controversy—The Excitement in England—What is Said in Parliament.

VIENNA, July 8.—The official journals contradict all reports of the interference of Austria in the pending difficulty between France, Prussia and Spain, and they declare that Austria will not, under any circumstances, participate in the controversy.

LONDON, July 8.—The excitement here has been intense over the condition of affairs on the Continent, but there is a reaction of sentiment today in consequence of a conviction which has sprung up that war will be avoided. There was much internal comment in the House of Commons tonight on Prussia's delay in responding definitely to the note of France. The opinion was frequently expressed that this indicated a spirit of mischief, if not a more dangerous purpose, on the part of Prussia.

Napoleon Meets the Spanish Minister—France Will Not Seek Explanations.

PARIS, July 8—Midnight.—Señor OLOZAGA, the Spanish Ambassador, had a long conference today with the Emperor, at which Chevalier NIGRA, the Italian Minister, was present. It is not certain now whether OLOZAGA will leave to-night for Madrid. The ministerial journals are violent against PRIM and BISMARCK, and say France will not accept explanations from them. The semi-official journals of Berlin say that BISMARCK is the accomplice of PRIM in the Hohenzollern intrigue, and that the King of Prussia had given permission to the project.

The French Army Ready to March—No Answer from Prussia Before Monday—Declaration of the French Minister at Russia.

PARIS, July 8—Midnight.—The Minister of War declared to the Emperor today that the army is ready to march at the first signal. No answer has been received from Prussia, and it is reported that none will be received before Monday. A telegram from St. Petersburg reports that the French Minister there has declared that the coronation of a Hohenzollern as King of Spain will be regarded by France as a casus belli.

INFALLIBILITY

The Dogma to be Proclaimed on the 17th Inst.—Great Preparations for the Event—The Third Chapter Adopted—Protest of American Prelates.

ROME, July 8.—The dogma of infallibility will be proclaimed on the 17th inst. Preparations are being made for a magnificent celebration of the event. The ceremonials attending the publication of the dogma will be held in the Church of Leo IV. The Pope will occupy the veritable chair of St. Peter. The Cardinals, Archbishops and Bishops will attend in full canonicals, and the various religious orders will go to the church in procession. The conclusion of the religious ceremonies will be heralded in the populace with salvos of cannon and peals of bells.

PARIS, July 8.—Correspondence from Rome, dated the 5th, represent that orators on both sides of the infallibility question in the Council having renounced their intention of speaking on condition that the manuscripts of their speeches may be submitted to the Deputation on Faith, it is probable that the Scheme will be voted before the 15th. On Tuesday chapter III. was adopted, and the vote on the last chapter, that which deals exclusively with the dogma of infallibility, will soon follow. The partisans of the dogma believe the original formula will be maintained by the Council, and will be promulgated on the 17th inst. by the Pope with extraordinary solemnity and rejoicing.

LONDON, July 8.—According to later advices received here from Rome, the sittings of the Council have been suspended for some days, pending the preparation of the amendments to the chapter on infallibility. Several American prelates have protested against the abrupt close of the discussion on Chapter III.

EUROPE.

The British Parliament—Passage of the Irish Land Bill in the Lords—The Education Bill in the House.

LONDON, July 8.—In the House of Lords the Irish Land bill has passed through the Committee, and it came up today for its third reading. Lord CLANCARTY pronounced the measure a disappointment to everybody. It was offensive to landlords and a delusion to tenants. The Lords had spoiled the wise measures of the House of Commons. After desultory remarks and some verbal amendments the bill was read for the third time and passed. Their Lordships adjourned....The House of Commons was in Committee again to-night on the Education bill. Several amendments were adopted. One was offered by Mr. RAGLEY increasing the stringency of the clause which makes school attendance compulsory, and excited an animated debate. Mr. FORSTER admitted the necessity for some compulsion; but he had objections to unqualified compulsion. Mr. GATHORNE HARDY thought the law, and not the local boards, should determine the point of compulsion. The amendment was rejected by 132 majority. The House adjourned.

The Whitbeck Anti-Rent Case—Examination of the Prisoner.

BALLSTON, N. Y., July 8.—The Whitbeck trial is progressing rapidly. Judge A. R. JAMES, of Ogdensburg, is on the Bench, and is pushing the case as rapidly as possible. Several witnesses have been examined, and the testimony thus far presented does not differ materially from the published accounts of the affray. The defense will be opened by EDMUND L. FARMAN, of Troy, and closed by Messrs. HENRY SMITH, of Albany, and MARTIN I. TOWNSEND, of Troy. The case for the people will be summed up by Messrs. MATTHEW HALE, of Albany, and WM. A. BRADY, of Troy. It is thought the prosecution will rest to-morrow. If so, the trial will be finished on Thursday next.

DISASTROUS FIRES.

Six Acres of Buildings Burned in Manchester, N. H.—Two Hundred Operatives Thrown Out of Employment—Large Railway Works Destroyed in Canada—Heavy Losses in St. Louis, Pittsburg, Cleveland and Minneapolis.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 8.—At 2 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in one of the buildings in the rear of the Merchants' Exchange, and swept through the wooden buildings in that section and adjoining, covering nearly all the locality between Elm and Chestnut streets, and between Hanover-street on the north, and the back street between Manchester and the Merrimack on the south. The fire originated in a room occupied by DRAKE & CARPENTER, coffee and spice dealers, and unquestionably caught from a roaster, which ignited the dry wood-work and communicated to the adjacent buildings, many of which were wood. The area burned over is from five to six acres. The amount of property destroyed is not far from $250,000, on which there is about $125,000 insurance. The number of families thrown out of their homes are not less than 200, and some put the number much higher. There has been no loss of life, as far as known, and no one was seriously injured. After the fire had raged more than an hour the wind lulled and it rained freely, which had a great influence in arresting the progress of the fire. Hon. E. W. HARRINGTON is probably the largest individual loser. The Masonic Temple, owned by him and Dr. S. W. JONES, was worth $60,000 and was insured for about $20,000. Messrs. HARRINGTON & JOHNSON'S loss is about $8,000; they are partially insured. J. G. A. BARGER'S loss is $10,000; insured for $6,000. JOHN B. CLARK, proprietor of the Daily Mirror, whose office was partially destroyed, estimates his loss at $10,000, on which he has $6,000 insurance. The First Baptist Church, corner of Chestnut and Manchester streets, was among the buildings burned; loss, $12,000. A large number of mechanics and tradesmen were among the sufferers by the fire.

BROCKVILLE, Canada, July 8.—The engine-house and shop of the Brockville and Ottawa Railroad Company were destroyed by fire, last night, with a number of cars that were in process of construction. One man was slightly injured. Loss, $100,000; insurance about one-third that amount.

LOUIS, Mo., July 8.—The freight warehouses of the St. Louis and Vandalia, and Illinois Central Railroad Companies, on Second-street, between Spruce and Myrtle, containing a large quantity of hemp, whisky, flour, hides, &c., were burned at 2 o'clock this morning. The insurance has not been ascertained. The fire was the work of an incendiary....The lumber-yard of HARTMAN & GRAHAM, on the corner of Monroe and Main streets, was damaged by fire to the amount of $2,000 last night. Insured for $1,500, in the Germania, of New-York; Cleveland Fire, and City Fire, of Hartford, Insurance Companies.

PITTSBURG, Penn., July 8.—The Commercial Oil Works of KIRKPATRICK & LYONS were burned yesterday afternoon. The fire caught from sparks from a passing locomotive. Eight hundred barrels of refined oil ready for shipment were consumed, together with the principal part of the machinery. The loss is about $20,000; partially insured.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, July 8.—The planing-mill of RANSOM, HUNTT & CO., on the corner of Columbia and Central streets, was partially burned last night. The loss is $10,000, on which there is no insurance.

CHICAGO, July 8.—A large fire broke out Wednesday night at Pontiac, Ill., which destroyed thirteen buildings, involving a loss of $85,000. The principal sufferers are Messrs. ### THE IRON-MOLDERS.

Proceedings of the Convention Yesterday—Protest Against Chinese Immigration—Important Action on the Question of Strikes.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., July 8.—In the Iron Moulders' Convention, today, a motion was made by THOMAS WARD, that this Convention enter a protest against the importation of Chinese as coolie labor into this country under the present system. It was referred to a committee appointed on the subject. A motion limiting the amount of work to be done by members of the Union working at piece work was referred to the Committee on the Constitution. A motion was made by JOSIE GRASSBY, that hereafter the President's salary shall be $1,200 per annum, and that of the Treasurer $100. Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. G. BRADLEY moved that the Constitution be so amended as to abolish all future strikes of minor Unions, and that a system be adopted for the arbitration of all difficulties. Referred.

At the afternoon session a communication from the Grand Lodge of Knights of St. Crispin of Pennsylvania, in session in this city, was received on the question of coolie labor. It set forth that the attack was first made upon them, and they were, perhaps, more immediately interested, and continued:

"But how long will it be, if the experiment proves successful, before every other branch of industry will be made to feel the same degrading influence that is now attempted to be brought to bear upon us? We consider that an attack upon one form of labor is an attack upon all, and should be met by all in a combined effort. We shape that opposition shall assume, you are to determine, as well as we, and we should be happy to hear from you at your earliest convenience when any suggestion you may feel called upon to offer, will be respectfully considered."

The communication was referred to the Committee on Coolie Labor. JAMES CARROLL presented a resolution that the second section of article 8 of the Constitution be stricken out, and a substitute be reported by the Committee on Constitution. The following was agreed to:

Resolved, That no operative hereafter in any branch of this Union shall be allowed to work a fellow-man with or near any work for any factory where there is any trouble existing, and any member so doing shall lay himself liable to be expelled from this Union.

THE INDIANS.

The Delegation Here at Washington—A Council Held Yesterday—Speeches by Little Swan and Standing Bull—Their Future Movements.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 8.—The Indian delegations, representing the Sioux, Arapahoes, Cheyennes and Two Kettle Sioux, had a council with Commissioner PARKER today. The council was opened by the Commissioner expressing regrets that all the Indians could not have been here as the time RED CLOUD and SPOTTED TAIL were in Washington. He also explained to them that SPOTTED TAIL had, while here, promised to keep peace, and RED CLOUD, while making no positive promises, would keep on his reserve. The general tenor of the Commissioner's remarks was similar to those conveyed to the delegations which have recently been here, asserting the desire of the Government to have them at peace with the whites, and the determination to use properly the appropriations made by Congress for the benefit of the Indians. LITTLE SWAN, responding, said he came right away when he was called here to see his Great Father. He thought that what the Government wanted was good, but said his people all had not hearts like his own, and sometimes would not agree. The usual complaints about the whites taking their land, and the establishment of railroads in the country were made. In response to a question from Senator CORBETT, who was present, LITTLE SWAN said his people would return to their reserve after their Summer hunt; and to the question whether they had gone out to hunt or commit depredations, he said, they did not go out for a war, but I suppose they will war while they are out. He wants three or four stores on the reservation, so they can buy goods cheaper. RUNNING BULL, RED FEATHER, and others, made speeches, all expressing friendship for the whites and asking for more traders. They also want presents to take home to their families. They desire to have Gen. STANLEY and Major RANDALL remain among them. RED FEATHER said he was very poor and wanted to go back well dressed. He wanted a wagon, oxen and cows, and desired the Great Father to take care of the half-breeds among the tribes. The Commissioner made another speech after the Indians had concluded, saying he was glad to hear they were well disposed and friendly, and hoped they would so continue; and that they would keep their young men friendly and not let them go out to fight. Alluding to the traders, he said their agent can appoint as many good traders as he chooses. All the Government desires is that they get good men. During the interview, Commissioner PARKER asked LITTLE SWAN whether his Chiefs and young braves would agree with him as to peace, and have good hearts. The Chief remarked that he had visited Congress, and found the members there disagreeing. It was the same way with his people at home. The question was asked how he became a great Chief. He replied, by his deeds in battle. Some one suggested, "By killing people?" "Yes," he quickly responded, "the same as the Great Father in the White House." These Indians will start back to their homes to-night, and they will be given presents for their families. They will visit Philadelphia and New-York en route.

Later Advices from Dakota—Hostile Attitude Assumed by the Indians There Located.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—An official report for warded here from the Lower Brule Agency, Dakota, dated the 19th of June, mentions that on that date the Indians located there visited the camp of Brevet Major KEANE, of the Fourteenth Infantry, and at a council, which they desired, informed him that they represented the fighting portion of that population. They stated that the land had been given them and their children by the Government, and that the whites there were trespassers—using their wood, water and grass. They demanded pay for everything of that kind which had been used. They said the soldiers there had better go back where they came from, which remark was reiterated by several of the Indians. Major KEANE replied, in effect, that they had been sent there and intended to stay and build houses; that their claims for pay must come through their agents, and that he would settle with them only that way. In order, however, to show that they came on a peaceable errand, he offered to give them something to eat. They replied, after the "rations" had been brought out, that they must be paid for the grass, &c., before night. The Indians talked as if they preferred going to war to remaining at peace.

She replied, indignantly, "No!" whereupon he drew a knife and cut her throat. The screams of the girl brought Mr. and Mrs. MCMASTERS to the door, and before the door could be forced open, SAUNDERS inflicted several stabs on his own person. He was seized and removed to the Police station. Both are in a critical condition....Hon. MARK H. DUNNELL has received the Republican nomination for Congress from the First Minnesota District. The Convention passed resolutions indorsing the Administration of President GRANT, and against adding the payment of the public debt to the burdens of the present generation; in favor of a reduction of taxation, and a reduction of the tariff to a revenue standard.....At a recent session of the United States District Court of Iowa, judgment was rendered in railroad-bond cases to the amount of $296,000.... BLEW enticed the boy into a pasture, after making an indecent proposition to Mrs. HOFFMAN, who was alone at the house. After murdering the boy, BLEW returned to Mrs. HOFFMAN, and made an effort to violate her person, but she successfully resisted the attack, and, ridding herself of the villain, ran to a neighbor's house. The murderer made his escape and has not yet been arrested.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 8.—The Red River Free Nation of June 24 says that on the 22d the Legislative Assembly of Assiniboine was convened by RIEL to take action on the Manitoba bill and the articles of confederation, as reported by the delegates. They were adopted. RIEL expressed his satisfaction with the action of the Legislature. It is thought that the Commissioners must have brought back assurances from Ottawa of an amnesty to RIEL, or the adoption of the bill would not have been so sudden and unanimous.

And be it further enacted, That every association organized for the purpose of issuing gold notes as provided in this act, shall be subject to all the requirements and provisions of the National Currency act, except the first clause of section 32, which limits the circulation of national banking associations to $300,000,000; the first clause of section 22, which provides for the redemption of their notes in lawful money; the second clause of said section, which requires national banking associations organized in the City of San Francisco to redeem their circulating notes at par in the City of New-York; and the last clause of said section, which requires every national banking association to receive in payments of debts the notes of every other national banking association at par; provided, that in applying the provisions and requirements of said act to said gold-note associations, it shall be provided for, the terms "lawful money" and "lawful money of the United States" shall be held and construed to mean gold or silver coin of the United States.

SEC. 5. And be it further enacted, That, to secure a more equitable distribution of the national banking currency, there may be issued circulating notes to banking associations organized in the States and Territories having less than their proportion, as herein set forth; and the amount of circulation in this section shall, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, as it may be required for this purpose, be withdrawn, as hereinafter provided. That the aggregate circulation of States having a circulation exceeding that provided for by the act entitled "An act to amend an act entitled an act to provide for a national banking currency, secured by a pledge of United States bonds, and to provide for the circulation and redemption thereof," approved March 3, 1865, but the amount so withdrawn shall not exceed one-fourth of the circulation of the Comptroller of the Currency, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, make a statement showing the amount of circulation in each State and Territory, and the amount to be withdrawn from each banking association in accordance with this section, and shall, when such redistribution of circulation is required, make a regulation for such amount upon such banks, commencing with the banks having circulation exceeding $1,000,000 in States having an excess of circulation, and then proceeding pro rata with other banks having a circulation exceeding $500,000, in the same manner, and shall, in the investment and redeeming the circulation of such banks in States having the greatest proportion in excess, leaving undisturbed the banks in States having a smaller proportion until those in greater excess have been reduced to the same grade, and continuing thus to make the reduction provided for by this act until the full amount of $25,000,000, herein provided for, shall be withdrawn; and the circulation so withdrawn shall be distributed among the States and Territories having less than their population, so as to equalize the same. And it shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency, under the direction of the Secretary of the Treasury, forthwith to make a requisition for the amount thereof, upon the banks above indicated as herein described. And upon failure of such association, or any of them, to return the amount so required within one year, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller of the Currency to sell at public auction, having given twenty days' notice thereof in one daily newspaper printed in Washington, and one in New-York City, an amount of bonds deposited by said association, as security for said circulation, equal to the circulation to be withdrawn from said association and not returned in compliance with such requisition; and the Comptroller of the Currency shall withhold from such association any of the notes of said banking associations as they come to the Treasury as will equal the amount required and not so returned, and shall pay the same, if any, to such banking association: Provided, That no circulation shall be withdrawn under the provisions of this section until after the $54,000,000 granted in the first section shall have been taken up.

SEC. 6. And be it further enacted, That after the expiration of six months from the passage of this act, any banking association located in any State having more than its proportion of circulation, may be removed to any State having less than its proportion of circulation, under such rules and regulations as the Comptroller of the Currency, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, may require: Provided, that the amount of the issue of said banks shall not be diminished in the process of new issue provided for in this act.

Miscellaneous Telegrams.

NORFOLK, Va., July 8.—Sheriff MATHEW and Deputy Sheriff STEVENS today completed the removal of the 100 negro squatters, who have, since 1863, occupied the Taylor Farm, nine miles from Norfolk. The negroes were well armed, but offered no forcible resistance to the execution of the writ of ejectment. The larger part of the squatters have been settled on Gen. BUTLER'S land, near Hampton.

GALVESTON, Texas, July 8.—Large public meetings have been held in different portions of Texas, unanimously favoring the appointment of C. B. SABIN as Judge of the Eastern District of Texas.

MANCHESTER, N. H., July 8.—The officers of the New-England and New-Hampshire Agricultural Societies are here perfecting arrangements for the great Fair to be held in this city in the first week of September next. The Fair promises to be the most successful ever held in the Eastern States, the united strength of the New-England and New-Hampshire Societies being devoted to the enterprise.

BOSTON, July 8.—EDWARD CONNERS, who recently tossed a lad named EASTMAN into the dock from the State Prison wharf, causing his death, was today convicted of manslaughter in the Superior Court. Sentence was deferred.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 8.—Major GEORGE W. WRIGHT, the city editor of the Alta California, and a member of the Western Union Telegraph Expedition, died today.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 7.—The State Normal School, at New-Britain, re-opened two weeks after having been closed for two years; held its anniversary exercises today. It has had 125 pupils during the year, and nine graduated today. The exercises were of an interesting character. The school promises to be more successful than ever in the future.

THE CELESTIAL SHOE-MAKERS.

The Chinaman at Work in North Adams, Mass.—Progress of the Apprentices—Characteristics and Appearance—Their Reception by the "Natives"—Crispins Giving up the Contest.

The experiment of introducing Chinese labor in Massachusetts seems to be quite successful. We make the following extracts from a long letter in the Boston Post of yesterday, giving an account of the "situation" in North Adams:

The last of Mr. SAMPSON'S seventy-five Chinese shoe-makers having been set at work today, and the whole number being now industriously employed, some idea of their capabilities and efficiency can be formed, all of them having been mere novices in the craft. Today, completes three weeks from the first entry of the Mongolians into the shops, and today there are several "teams" who no longer require the supervision of an instructor, but work on their own hook, and turn out equally good work with the average of that performed by the Crispins. In fact, Mr. SAMPSON declares that he can now manufacture as good in quality, under the old dispensation, as now. As to rapidity, of course the Orientals are inferior as yet to their predecessors. It has been thought best to allow them to take their own time, merely requiring that the work shall be well and thoroughly done; and allow them to grain good leather. But if the Chinamen be not as rapid as the Crispins, they make up in persistent, unremitting industry, which in the long run will enable them to make a fair showing, at least, as to quantity of work turned out. Today, the last detachment of fifteen, who have hitherto been in blissful ignorance of the art, will be put to work in the apprentice, under the tutelage of their brethren who have already acquired it, are plunging into its mysteries.

OBSERVATION AND IMITATION.

The Chinese are a most observant and imitative people. Their little, oblique, almond eyes take in a great deal of what is going on around them, and on occasion they prove that their memories are alike quick and retentive and their facility of execution good. With their utter ignorance both of the craft and of our language, it is a matter of surprise how speedily and thoroughly they have mastered the technicalities of the business, and what they are shown once they rarely forget or need to be shown a second time. Hence their progress in acquiring the trade has been as rapid as that of average English-speaking apprentices, and has far exceeded the expectations of Mr. SAMPSON, or his Superintendent, Mr. CRAGIN.

A VIEW OF THE WORK-ROOM.

It is a novel and pleasing sight that the bottoming room in Mr. SAMPSON'S factory presents. All around the spacious apartment, which is

TENNESSEE.

The Democracy and its Record—Elections and Probable Results—Facts of Interest Concerning East Tennessee.

From Our Own Correspondent.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Monday, July 4, 1870.

It has been so long since I communicated with the readers of the TIMES that I feel almost a stranger. But they have not lost sight of this mountain section of Tennessee during this time, for I notice that bad little of special interest escapes the watchful eye of the gleaner for the "Current Notes" column—one of the most interesting features of your valuable journal. The season now possesses just new enough features of general interest which I have thought worthy of a letter.

POLITICAL CHANGES.

In the political department of our news there are some significant changes. The Republicans are now acting purely on the defensive, and gaining strength every day, mainly of the very stupid, inexcusable mismanagement of the Democratic leaders now in complete control of the State. Being in a minority, and having slumped off in last Summer's detection as element of the party which was not only a dead weight but actually a grievous drawback, the Republicans of Tennessee are really in a better condition today than they have been for four years. Through the fiendish manipulation of Gov. SENTER and the new Constitution the Democracy are now in a large majority, but so blundingly and inadroitly has been their management of State affairs, and so intolerant the spirit of their party leaders, that most of the moderate men of the party—the original Union element which has lately been identified with it—are thoroughly disgusted and disaffected. I shall not be surprised if, in the coming Gubernatorial canvass and elections for Assembly, 1870 parties will not substantially divide themselves upon the old issue of 1861, rebellion or no rebellion. The present General Assembly, elected upon the pledge of reform and upon bold charges of corruption in its predecessors, has itself been about as corrupt and inefficient as any body ever assembled in the State. If there is any difference in favor of the present body, it is certainly hard to discover. Its corruption is so notorious that one of the most prominent leaders of its own faith is actually now in Nashville, ready and anxious to make good his public charges of corruption against one of its most important and respectable committees. The gentleman to whom I refer, Col. JOHN BAXTER, of this City, in a series of letters lately published in the Knoxville Chronicle, charged some members of one of its committees appointed to investigate railroad frauds, with having been bought up by the "corruptionists." The Assembly, not daring to ignore such a public charge, called upon Mr. BAXTER to make good his charges. He promptly responded that if a committee were appointed that would allow him to appear as prosecutor and summon witnesses, he would prove his allegations. The Assembly has been over two weeks in appointing the Committee. The joint resolution is now likely to be vetoed by Gov. SENTER. Col. BAXTER has been at the Capitol several days ready to proceed, but in the meantime the Assembly and Governor delay, and the accused members leave the city to avoid an examination. Thus, by its own legislation and action, this Democratic Assembly and Governor admit the charges of corruption preferred by one of their own party. But this is not all. This Assembly has done something toward investigating the alleged frauds of our Republican Administration. But in every case the most gigantic frauds are fastened upon the members of the Democratic Party—men now prominent in its party as members of political committees and publishers of party papers. In the School Fund investigations it turns out that about all the fund was stolen by the Democrats during the war. Almost all of the fund restored after the war has been accounted for. The portion lost was through a bank in Memphis.

A SHAMEFUL RECORD.

Add to this corruption of our present and past Democracy all their extreme, bitter, partisan legislation, and it has made for itself a record as shameful as ever made for any political organization in Tennessee. Not content with having stolen our School Fund, our Democracy are now attempting to take from the East Tennessee University at this place the Agricultural College Fund given to it by the last Assembly. In attempting to do this, the Assembly is tampering with the honor and credit of the State, for the fund upon every principle of law and equity is vested in this University. Upon the faith of the State's legislation its trustees have spent nearly all of their old endowment. They did this to meet the conditions contained in the act giving them the fund. Now without any reason this foolishly has passed an act to take the fund away. The bill has passed the House, and, doubtless, will pass the Senate. The only reason I can assign for this breach of faith is hatred to East Tennessee and the University for their loyal record. The ostensible reason, of course, is to divide the fund for the benefit of other sections of the State. But this violation of the honor of the State is only on a par with the shameful, ruinous policy of repudiation, which, in part, was successful. All this unpopular and shameful record makes Democracy odious even in this strong Democratic State, and gives to the Republican Party, under its new leadership and management, a strength that will make itself known in the coming elections.

COMING ELECTIONS.

In August we elect our Judiciary. The Supreme Court, reorganized under the new Constitution, will be entirely Conservative. Some of the candidates are exceptionally good men, and will do credit to the State. There are many candidates not worthy of the place, but the chances are that enough good men will be elected to give us an honest and able Court. There are six Judges to be elected, two from each division of the State. In the inferior Courts, in East Tennessee at least, the Republicans will generally be successful. In October we elect a Governor and Assembly. The Democracy have several aspirants, and the chances now favor a split in the party. The extreme Democracy cannot forget the rebellion and want that to influence their selections for office. The result may be that the whole Union element of the State and moderate Confederates may unite upon some moderate honest man. The Assembly to be elected will certainly be an improvement on this. It could not be well worse. In East Tennessee the Republicans are steadily gaining strength and will easily show a bold front in all the elections. In November we hold our Congressional elections. In the First District, Mr. BUTLER will find some opposition to his renomination. The district is Republican, and will no doubt be represented accordingly. The Democracy will probably nominate JAMES WHITE, who can be easily defeated if the proper course be pursued. In the Second District, Hon. HORACE MAYNARD will have no opposition in his party to a renomination, and will, in all probability, be nominated without trouble. I cannot see how he can possibly fail. In the Third District a Republican ought to be re-elected. Gen. BROWNLOW has not yet determined to be a candidate. The district, if the right efforts are made, can elect a Republican. The rest of the eight districts are Democratic, and will be so represented, unless through divisions some more sense are chosen.

KNOXVILLE.

Knoxville is prospering and growing better than we anticipated. Her citizens are fully aroused to the necessity of enterprise and work, and fine inducements are offered to capitalists who desire to establish manufactories. East Tennessee is gradually filling up with a fine class of immigrants from the North, and offers fine inducements to all who desire a mild climate, a healthful location, good soil and a pleasant people. Knoxville will soon be a manufacturing center, and one of the pleasantest cities of the South. OMEGA.

Cornell University and Monetary Degrees

From the Troy Press, July 7.

Cornell University, the institution of learning where a young gentleman may learn a little of everything and become a jack-at-all-trades and master of none, is, as it frequently the case with pretenders, putting on airs. The trustees have resolved to confer an honorary degree. They waited, however, until the Regents of the University conferred the degree of Doctor of Letters upon Mr. GOLDWIN SMITH, one of the Professors at Cornell. This probably convinced the trustees that the conferring of honorary degrees was nothing but humbug. But we are glad Prof. SMITH has received his degree, and now that he has his diploma we hope he will at once set about doctoring his letter to Mr. DISRAELI upon the subject of one of the characters in Jacob said to represent Mr. SMITH. We don't know of a letter that needs doctoring more than that, for it certainly is in a bad state of general debility. But Cornell has made a great mistake, founded in quackery and snobbery. Colleges are not dishonored by conferring honorary degrees, but by conferring them on improper persons. If the choice is a good one both the college and the recipient of the degree are benefited. Has Union College suffered by conferring honorary degrees upon such men as WILLIAM H. SEWARD, JOHN F. SLOSSMAN, RUFUS W. PECKHAM, and other distinguished gentlemen? Will Princeton College be injured because it conferred the degree of LL. D. on Gov. HOFFMAN and Wm. M. EVARTS as its last Commencement? Cornell is a little too young to attempt to set examples for colleges centuries old, to follow. The English universities and our own Yale, Harvard and Union will be slow to pattern after it.

CURRENT NOTES

Rev. Prof. MATHER, of Amherst, finding his congregation drowsy and inattentive, last Sunday, stopped in the middle of his discourse, and put them through the exercise of singing a hymn, and then proceeded, doubtless to their great edification.

The late Cincinnati Sengerfest, in a social sense, and aside from its musical attractions, seemed to have been by no means a dry affair, for it is estimated that about 25,000 kegs of lager-beer were broached on that occasion. Cincinnati lager-beer, by the bye, is said to be of a better quality than New-York lager-beer, by those who have made a fair trial of both.

It is said that two negroes a day join the army in Detroit, Mich.

They have some peculiar modes of amusing themselves in Lockport. A citizen of that enlightened city the other day covered a dog with kerosene oil and set fire to him.

The first newspaper published in Mobile, Ala., the Gazette, reached its fifty-third anniversary on the 3d inst.

Capt. JOHN B. MULLONY, of Springfield, Mass., goes to Lima, Peru, on the 21st inst., to assist the Peruvian Government in the construction of a railroad. Yankee talent and enterprise are sadly needed in the South American republics.

The Buffalo Express says that mad dogs are becoming quite frequent in that city, and suggests that a massacre of curs may become necessary. One dog, said to be mad, had been shot on the preceding day, and by his fate suggested the bloody proposition that all his fellows be made to share the same fortune.

An officer of the law stopping in Detroit, over night, recently tried the stupid experiment of walking out of a window fifteen feet above the sidewalk, in his sleep. The experiment succeeded, but the result was not satisfactory.

The convicts in the Auburn Prison were allowed to celebrate on the Fourth. There was an oration, singing, and recitation, and unusually good things to eat, none of which, probably, will contribute more to the depravity of the prisoners than solitary confinement.

An enthusiastic lady who lately visited Springfield, Mass., has been giving utterance to her raptures at its many beauties. The Republican, however, in its anxiety to preserve the unsophisticated humility of the place, thinks it would not be right to print her compliments, but hints that one of them is "Earthly Paradise."

It is said that trichina have been discovered in the flesh of deer shot in their native wilds in Oregon.

The Chicago Lyceum have "resolved that the doctrine of endless punishment is true." We are sorry for that, but suppose it cannot be helped. That conclave of philosophers, however, are to debate the question on the 20th, and may possibly relent, and at least allow us the benefit of the doubt which has heretofore prevailed on the subject.

Miss LILLIAN EDGARTON, who has won success as a lecturer with her address on "Woman is Coming," is preparing for next season, "Whither are we Drifting? or, Marriage and Divorce," she is rigidly conservative on the subject of divorce.

The Byran (Texas) Appeal thanks God that it has heard of no Southern woman "perambulating the country with green spectacles and hermaphrodite apparel preaching 'Women's Rights,' 'Free Love,' and 'Spiritualism,'" as it has often seen "these lantern-jawed, thin-shanked and fork-tongued strong-minded women do who hail from that region whereof Boston is the social center." These Texans have a "power" of adjectives at their command. Perhaps they can put them to no better use.

A lady at Winsted, Conn., was struck by lightning a short time ago, and lay several hours apparently dead, so that nearly all of her friends were prepared to have her buried. Her brother, however, insisted upon waiting and working for her resuscitation, and his faith and works were finally rewarded by her complete restoration to life and health. During her trance she distinctly heard the remark of friends that she was "unpoetically dead."

An infant was lately found in the stomach of a cat-fish caught in the Tennessee River, near Chattanooga, by a hotel-keeper, who had purchased the fish for his table. Of course, the mystery is how the child got into the river rather than how it got into the fish. It looks like a case of infanticide brought to light in a manner worthy of the old fables.

They tell about a woman out in Iowa who bought 160 acres of wild land one year ago, has instocked and put it under cultivation, built a house upon it, planted a fine orchard and fruit-garden, with hedges all complete, and set out a large number of shade-trees, beside managing her household affairs. Of course, there is nothing said of her employing any assistance in all this. The name of the feminine prodigy is Mrs. CAROLINE WOOD, and she blesses the town of Douglass with her presence.

A Cold-blooded Murder in Ohio—A Man Fatally Shot in Presence of His Wife.

From the Cincinnati Times, July 6.

About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, near the steamboat landing, at Fairer Grove, occurred one of the most cold-blooded murders that it ever became our duty to chronicle. It seems that Mr. TIMOTHY DAILY, an employe of the Gas-works, who resides on Mill-street, near Columbia, had been spending day at the picnic of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, at the grove, about a mile distant on the hill, and was returning with his wife and little ones, when some miscreant fired a revolver from behind, inflicting a wound that killed him to the ground and proved fatal about an hour after. Mrs. DAILY states that she and her husband had almost reached the landing when she heard a shot, and the next moment saw her husband tumbling headlong in the dust. She looked back immediately after and saw three men apparreiling, but so great was her grief and excitement at that time that she would not now be able to recognize them. The unfortunate man was conveyed to the steamer Sam. J. Hale, where he expired before her arrival at the city. The fatal ball entered between the shoulders and passed through the chest and lodged against the collar-bone. A short time after this JOHN TAYLOR, a machinist of the steamer Hale was arrested on suspicion, brought to the city and confined in the Hammond-street Station-house until this morning, when he was taken before the Police Court and held for further information. Those who know Mr. TAYLOR refuse to believe that he could be guilty of such a cowardly deed, and Mr. TAYLOR and his friends on the boat claim that they can prove that he was asleep on the boat at the time the murder occurred. He is a man of steady habits and good character, and it is generally believed that his arrest was a great mistake. There were rumors on the streets this morning that the known perpetrators of the deed had been arrested, but the Police authorities claim to know nothing about it, and the rumors are doubtless groundless.

The "Third Party" Movement in Pittsburg—Business Prediction.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch, July 7.

Yesterday was the day set apart for holding the Convention of the Third Party, and the result will be found in full in our local columns. We have a high respect for the gentlemen nominated on the ticket, and for many who attended the Convention as delegates, but as a political movement the Convention was a failure. We might apply our criticism on the primaries to the Convention, with perfect propriety. It lacked in numbers, enthusiasm, order and good management. There were seventy delegates, nominally representing just 165 Republicans out of more than 14,000. In a new movement, only those can be regarded as adherents who actually connect themselves with the movement. Established parties may have but a handful attend primaries, yet it is known just what proportion are commanded at the election. The principles which were employed to allay the party lash, who would come out from the party and vote for delegates for this Convention. They were thus the test of the present strength of the movement. The Convention was bunglingly managed, was spiritless, listless and closed without the slightest display of enthusiasm. True reforms always carry enthusiasm with them. Their promoters are always enthusiastic, but this movement utterly lacked, so far as the primaries or Convention showed, enthusiasm or spirit. There were sincere, respectable gentlemen present, and a few professional politicians, who seemed to rule and manage, but they evidently had a larger task on hand and than they were accustomed to. As a result, the whole affair was a failure. The nominations made are in themselves commendable, as embodying the names of respectable gentlemen, but our understanding is that but few are likely to accept, or to manifest the least interest in the campaign. Their nomination is weak in a political sense. The ticket lacks consistency or political purpose. A larger number of equally respectable names could have been found. The affair looks as though, conscious of failure, the managers of the affair determined to extricate themselves from a difficulty by selecting a list of names as candidates for certain offices, and then adjourn, and so dodge a hopelessly disagreeable and unpromising job.

KANSAS

Indian Council at Fort Scott—Cheerful Speeches of the Chiefs—Appreciation of Gen. Hazen's Efforts.

At a recent council at Fort Scott, Kansas, with the Uchitte Indians, in relation to their going on to a fixed reservation, the following speeches were made. ARSOA-OWA, Chief of the Artchitas, said:

Gen. HAZEN told us a long time ago he would send us an agent, a man who would look after our interests and provide for our wants; and, now that you have come we feel glad, for now we believe that our father is Washington intends to do something for us. . . . We feel proud to know that the Government intends giving us a country to be known as our country and our children's country, for when we come to breathe our last breath we can say to our children this is your country. We are glad that the Government furnish us several Chiefs with a written title to this country, so that it cannot be taken from us. I and my people will do all that we can to make this country a good country, free from blood and crime, and then the white man can point to this country and say this is the country that belongs to the white man's children. We are very glad to see you here today, for we feel that you are sent here by our father, Gen. HAZEN, and we know that for the love you bear him you will not do anything wrong. It seems that there is brighter sun shining brightly than has ever shone before, and our hearts have been made joyful by your good talk.

TOWACONIE DOVE, Chief of the Towaconies, said:

I am a red man. I sometimes think white man think red men have no feelings, but the God above has given us memories the same as white people. We remember all the good deeds and bad deeds that have ever been done for us. If the white men here do not assist us, we cannot help it. We believe the good God above will do as much for us as he will do for the white man. We look to him for help. I believe that God has said to the white man, 'Be good to the Indian, and do not wrong him, for you are living in his country.' And if the white man does not do this, he not only wrongs us, but his Maker. A long time ago we were a powerful people, but by having intercourse with the white we have gradually become poor. I know there is a vast difference between white people, for there are some white people who fear God and try to carry out his teachings. We believe that you fear God and that you will do by us as you say. We were told a long time ago that we should have a people for the Government, but nothing has this band not been done. We hope that you will organize schools for us; and as you have told us you would, we believe you. We are glad to know we are to have a country set apart for us, and that we will have our own agent and our own commissary; then if the Government keeps its promise and fulfills what it has to say to them, we will try and become an independent people. We all understand what the boundaries of our country will be, and we know Gen. HAZEN has brought it about. All the men, women and children will always hold in kind remembrance the name of Gen. HAZEN, and will all rejoice to know they are to have a home.

BUFFALO COON, Chief of the Wacoes, said:

I have been trying to do good for a number of years and if you can only obtain the object for which we are assembled we will live well yet as a brother. Today I feel like a man who has land—who has land—who has country—and I am proud of it. We have been taught to believe that we had a country, for the bones of our fathers, our children and our friends lie mouldering on these plains and hills, but now that we have heard we have a country we are glad to know the Government intends to set apart a portion of this country for us and our children. We have no way of keeping records like white people, but I remember when I was a small boy there was a big council held with these Indians, on the spot where Fort Scott now stands, and they were told all this country, from the Canadian to Red River, was ours, and that papers were signed giving the Indians all this country, and I think those papers should be on record in Washington now. I know I am speaking with the eyes of God above looking down upon me, and I know if I were to tell you a lie he would feel bad. I only wish to tell the truth for the good of my people. The Government may go out on the prairies and hold councils with the wild Indians, and they will say yes to everything and make all kinds of promises, but they only do so for the purpose of getting sugar and coffee. We mean what we say. Today when I return to my camp and tell my people what you and Gen. HAZEN are trying to do for us, they will take a firmer hold of the corn-hoe than they have ever done before. Heretofore they have been talked to by the whites, but they have never taken as much interest in it as they do now, for they are glad to know that they are to have a country of their own. If you will send men among them to show them how to work they will pay more attention than they have ever done before, but they must have tools, for they cannot work without implements. The idea of knowing they are to have a home, and which forth to be starved by any other Indians is encouraging to them, and they will settle down and try and improve their country and make it a good country. The wild Indians have tried to make fun of me for following the white man's road, but now I shall rise in the morning feeling that I have a country to live in, and when I go forth in the morning to view my corn-field and garden my heart will feel glad that that corn is growing on my own ground. All we want now is that the Government furnish us tools and good white men to show us how to use them, for you must keep in mind that we are poor, ignorant Indians, and not skilled in using the implements of husbandry."

The Coal Supply—Abundance of Fuel to be Mined, but No Decline in the Price.

From the Pottsville (Penn.) Miners' Journal, July 2.

During the past week we have received a number of letters from abroad, making inquiries as to the situation, prices, &c., and the future prospect of the trade this year. In replying, we may say that, unless something extraordinary and unforeseen happens, the market will be abundantly supplied with coal during the remainder of the season at low prices.

Notwithstanding the suspension in a portion of the anthracite regions, which has lasted here for three months, the supply of coal this year, to this date, from those regions, is 364,310 tons ahead of the supply from the same regions up to the same date last year.

The total tonnage for last year the supply was 725,127 tons behind that of 1869 up to the same date. Yet when the collieries got to work that deficiency was not only made up and prices broke down, but a surplus of 973,137 was thrown into the market. The shipments from July 8 up to December averaged 320,000 tons a week, and when all of the collieries got to work last year the shipments averaged 415,000 tons per week for five successive weeks. And yet, with about three-fourths of the collieries in Schuylkill County suspended, and a portion in Lehigh and Shamokin, the regions are now shipping as much per week as the average shipments of last year at this time, as they averaged last year 320,000 tons for the balance of the season.

When the collieries all resume we can ship as least 415,000 tons a week, and can throw into the market 800,000 tons over and above the shipments of last year. Should that be done it would give an increase of 1,764,000 tons this year over last.

Even if the present collieries should stand idle for the rest of the season, which is not at all probable, as a large portion of the men are tired and desirous of going to work, there will be an increase of a million of tons of coal this year. But we do not believe that the men will remain idle much longer, and that it will be but a short time before they will go to work, as a large portion are losing confidence in their leaders. Some anticipate a turnout in the other regions, but we do not believe there will be one in the present situation of the trade.

This is the situation. We are asked if the price of coal will be lower this season. We believe that it will not in the coal regions, but as the rates of transportation to the seaboard will be advanced, prices in the markets on the seaboard will hardly be affected. We would advise consumers abroad not to be apprehensive of a short supply of coal, but we would advise those who desire to lay in their stocks to do so, without rushing into the market and causing a fluctuation in prices, which is not beneficial to and which is not desired by the trade. Our object is to put consumers abroad on their guard and warn them not to rush into the market, for there is nothing in the situation of the trade to warrant it, and if the prices of coal should be materially advanced this season it will be their own fault, not that of the coal regions. We thus communicate, laying it before coal consumers, but there is no [illegible] as we have charged our correspondent to do so, [illegible] the market and the causes that have led to [illegible] prices.

THE FIRST BULL RUN FIGHT.

Responsibility for the Rebel Failure to Advance—Unpublished Letters Between Jeff. Davis and Gen. J. E. Johnston.

From the Jackson (Miss.) Clarion.

Mr. STEPHENS' first volume, entitled The War Between the States, is a contribution to history which has added more justice to his name than all else he has accomplished. As an inquiry into the nature of the Government of the United States, as of the nature of the Union which was established by its original framers, it is invaluable. No amount of special pleading can overturn the historical truths he has cited, and the deductions that logically follow them, and which place the entire responsibility of the rupture which occurred between the States upon the party in the Northern States, which, having repeatedly violated constitutional guarantees of the compact, finally succeeded in obtaining power by a strictly sectional vote for the consummation of all their schemes against the minority section. In the second volume, as we learn by a review of some advance sheets sketched in the Augusta Constitutionalist, this investigation is still further prosecuted, and the facts of history are marshaled to constitute a complete vindication of the Southern States for the part they have acted. Their justification is all the more valuable because it is from the pen of a statesman who was never classed as a "Southern extremist," but the reverse. Judging from the glimpse the Constitutionalist has afforded the public of the contents of the second volume, it would have been worth the fame of Mr. STEPHENS and his reputation for impartial historian if he had stopped here. He has been known to have stated the details of the formation of the Confederate States Government, and in describing the conduct of the war, that in tracing the responsibility of the conflict to its true source. He has committed several errors of facts which are recorded in this volume, obviously his position, and who has unfortunately lost his posterity. One of these errors he has removed necessary the publication of the following correspondence. It is the statement that President DAVIS "was responsible for the failure of the Confederate forces to advance after the victory of Manassas. The original of this correspondence has been in the possession of Jefferson Davis since it occurred, and would probably have remained among the secret, hidden things of the Confederacy, if the story, often repeated by ambitious penny-a-liners and venal scribblers, had not found an enduring place in so imposing a work as the history of the war by the Confederate States. Vice President, Upon the charge raised by Mr. STEPHENS, the following correspondence is conclusive. On the testimony of Gen. J. E. JOHNSTON, it is established, that if the victory at Manassas was succeeded by a fatal blunder, as the historian intimates his belief, it was not attributable to President DAVIS. The historical value of the correspondence is enhanced by its revelation of the real cause that prevented an advance of the Confederated after their success at Manassas.

RICHMOND, VA., Nov. 2, 1861.

Gen. J. E. Johnston, Commanding Department of the Potomac:

SIR: Reports have been and are being widely circulated to the effect that I prevented Gen. BEAUREGARD from pursuing the enemy after the battle of Manassas. I feel that I subsequently restrained him from advancing upon Washington City. Though such statements may have been made, merely for my injury, and in the way they have caused the battle to be more convenient your season, they have acquired importance from the fact that they have served to create distrust, to excite disappointment, and must embarrass the Administration in its hitherto vain efforts to reinforce the armies of the Potomac and generally to provide for the public defense. For these public considerations I call upon you, as the Commanding General, and as a gentleman, to state whether I did, on the 22d and 23d of July, to say whether I observed the result of the enemy after the victory of Manassas, or have ever objected to an advance or other active operation which it was feasible for the army to undertake.

Very respectfully yours, JEFFERSON DAVIS.

HEAD QUARTERS, CENTREVILLE, Nov. 10, 1861.

To His Excellency the President:

SIR: I have just received your letter of the 2d inst., in which you called upon me "as the Commanding General and as a party to all the conferences held by you on the 21st and 22d of July, to say

Whether you obstructed the pursuit after the victory of Manassas?

Or have ever objected to an advance or other active operation which it was feasible for the army to undertake?

"To the first question I reply, no. The pursuit was "obstructed" by the enemy's troops at Centreville, as I have also said, in my official report. In that report I have also said, in my conferences, we made upon the country's capital, (for reasons) as follows:

The apparent weakness of the United States troops at Centreville, which checked our pursuit; the close proximity of the works to Washington; the time and Alexandria, the certainty, too, that Gen. PATTERSON, if needed, would reach Washington with his army of more than 20,000 sooner than we could [illegible]

Alleged Threats to be Made Use of by Mr. Threatened to Kill.

From the Louisville Courier-Journal, July 6.

About 12 o'clock on Monday, WILLIAM BAILEY, a white man, shot and killed a negro man named THOMAS WILLIAMS, on the farm of Dr. STANDEFORD, about five miles from the city, between the Newburg and Preston-street roads. The two men were employed upon the farm, and, as is customary, were in charge of several "fresh" cultivating for their own use. On Saturday the hogs got into the negro's truck patch, and that night he went to BAILEY'S house during his absence, and accused Mrs. BAILEY of leaving the fence down and letting the hogs in, and of stealing his vegetables, and told her that if it occurred again that he would kill her, and finally drew some he would kill her if he had to take her out of her husband's arms to do it. BAILEY, on his return home, was informed of the matter, and on Monday morning met the negro, and a quarrel arose. Just then the overseer came up and stopped the quarrel, and sent the two men to their work, telling them to refer the matter to Dr. STANDEFORD. BAILEY started to his work he said that he would wait till 12 o'clock, and if the doctor did not come he would kill the negro. At dinner time BAILEY went home to his dinner, and then took down a musket loaded with shot, and started toward WILLIAMS' house, about 400 yards distant from his quarters. The negro woman saw him coming, and informed WILLIAMS of the fact, who got up and started toward BAILEY with his hoe. Meanwhile, when BAILEY raised the gun and fired, the load taking effect in WILLIAMS' head, killing him instantly. Dr. STANDEFORD, who was at his own home, some miles distant, upon being informed of the affair, sent word to the overseer to arrest BAILEY and to tie him if necessary. The message was improperly given, the messenger telling the overseer to tie BAILEY at once. BAILEY objected, saying he did not intend to run away, and went to the field and went to work. Late in the afternoon, when the Coroner arrived, BAILEY came to the house and, after the inquest, gave himself up. The Coroner gave him in charge of a man who had accompanied him, (the Coroner,) and BAILEY, after telling his family good-by, got into the buggy and the two started to town. BAILEY seemed perfectly willing to go, and got out of the buggy once to get his coat and at one time to open a gate, and both times got in cheerfully. But after reaching the turnpike he suddenly leaped out of the buggy, jumped into a cornfield and made his escape, and at last accounts had not been apprehended. BAILEY has a wife and four children, and is said to be a hard-working, industrious man.

The Cricket Invasion of Nevada—Whence They Come and Whither Bound.

From the Territorial Enterprise, Virginia City, Nevada, June 28.

The State has been invaded by crickets. Vast armies of them have entered the eastern portion of the State. A week ago the advanced guard of the devastating horde poured down upon Elko, and as they swept past with their silent tramp, the people stood appalled at their numbers. The Elko Independent does not trace their course eastward, but they evidently come from Utah, the home of the cricket, grasshopper and polygamous Mormon, and are cashes enough to cut or eat their way through to the green valleys of the Truckee. They are destructive on vegetation, and their advance should be stopped by some means. As the malarious marshes of the Genoque seem to be the home of the cholera, so does Utah appear to be the birth-place of the cricket and grasshopper plagues of the Great Basin. For the past eight or ten years, if not longer, that Territory has been sorely afflicted with grasshoppers, and it has sometimes seemed that the Saints would be compelled to yield their fields and pastures to these innumerable and remorseless destroyers. The cricket pest, however, has been less severe, and from the habits of this insect, we do not apprehend that the present invasion will prove very destructive. They sometimes appear in prodigious numbers, but they travel slowly, and their advance is easily stopped. In 1866, for a distance of twenty or thirty miles, in Utah, the whole face of the country was so densely covered with crickets—large, fat, clumsy, wingless fellows—that the wheels of the emigrant's wagon became almost clogged with the crushed carcasses of these insects. As their course could easily be traced, it was manifest that they had been travelled far, and winter probably overtook them before they could reach a very wide scope of the country. They advance steadily, however, and multiply a hundred and fifty fold each year. Hence, crickets, now that they have entered the State, may be expected for some years to come.

Third Day's Proceedings at the Sheridan Market Police Court—Mr. A. G. Hyde, the Complainant, and Mr. Jos. L. King, His Business Partner, on the Witness Stand.

The examination of the charges against WEST and GALWAY, President and Superintendent of the Anti-Gambling Society, was continued yesterday afternoon, in Jefferson Market Police Court, before Justice OTT. Chief S. SWENSON, Esq., appeared for the prosecution, and NATHANIEL WARING, Esq., for the defense.

Mr. A. G. HYDE, the complainant, was called to the witness stand, and continued his testimony on cross-examination by Mr. WARING, as follows: I know that I have had an interview with the defendants; I visited Galway, but I have not a list of the gamblers I visited; I have not a list of those I paid them; I have not the money I paid them; I have not the money here from time to time; I had a conversation with West and GALWAY in regard to the money; Mr. West was the man I talked with; I was in hopes the President; I think that Mr. GALWAY said that the detective who had this matter in hand was Mr. KING; I identified Mr. KING as the man he spoke to; I gave Mr. KING a check for $50; I think; West was there; I do not remember any other; I did subscribe; I said my money for social intercourse; $50; I think, made me a subscriber, and $25 was the equivalent; I believe; in the truth of that statement of Captain WOM. of the Chicago nine; to Mr. KING'S alleged gambling before I paid a dollar. I received the information; I said that money at the same interview; I cannot tell the day of the week; the first interview of both places; I said that I had a client to be [illegible] gambling; and that I would get my money or release the; I might ask; I said; GALWAY asked me; I said; I had all the facts; I gave the interview at the office; he wanted me to subscribe; I became a member about twenty or three weeks elapsed between the time I became a member; I paid GALWAY and the rest; I said; I was always willing to subscribe; I live at Riverdale, West-Chester; I say I have lived there two years; am in the City every day; saw Mr. GALWAY one or fifteen times before the letter I handed to yesterday was sent to Mr. King.

The letter referred to by the witness is as follows:

OFFICE OF THE ASSOCIATION FOR THE PREVENTION OF GAMBLING, NOS. 27 AND 29 MAIDEN-LANE, BOX 6,000 P.O., NEW-YORK, Feb. 18, 1870.

JOS. L. KING, Esq.:

SIR: As President of this Association, I address this letter to you, narrating the three reasons for causing certain letters sent to Mr. A. G. HYDE, which latter was marked "confidential." One of our detectives reported that a man engaged in the woolen trade at No. 54 Walker-street, was in the habit of frequenting gambling-houses, and that he was informed that his name was "Jos. L. King." On inquiry, the description as follows: Age thirty-eight, height five feet eleven, complexion florid, hair dark-brown, red whiskers and moustache, English style, dressed in dark business suit, and wore a black felt hat. On Monday, the 7th, a letter was written to Mr. HYDE asking him to come to this office, as I was under the impression that I had something important for him to know. Mr. HYDE called, and I showed him the letter and the report, together with the description, which fitted him. He said he would make a call. Mr. KING's whiskers and hat red, but I said some others may think it was a wig, and that it was possible he was rightly informed from certain business transactions. He was recently aware of making mention of these suspicious notes, and after a few hours' conversation, it was determined on by Mr. HYDE that we were to affix the matter thereunto, and I should write for him, with the assurance of Mr. HYDE that he was to keep it to himself, and accept it in a confidential way, and the truth or falsity of the whole affair was finally settled, and he said that, under no circumstances, would he divulge the origin of the information. The proper officers of this Association have investigated the matter, but were somewhat baffled by the circumstances of the detectives. On Thursday last, the 8th, Mr. HYDE was distinctly told that Mr. JOS. L. KING, his partner, was not the man alluded to, as his general appearance was different to the letter, and that the man who was seen making mention of gambling, passed on the 4th of March I received another letter from the Association.

Identified by witness and marked for identification. It bears the same printed heading as the other letter, and is as follows:

NEW-YORK, March 4, 1870.

Mr. Jos. L. King:

DEAR SIR: Inclosed, for you, I beg leave to report, is Mr. J. G. KING, at the firm of KING & DRAKE, No. 55 Franklin-street.

REPORT OF DETECTIVE.

Marked "confidential." Signature of witness. This ended my relations with the detectives until this complaint was made; I did not express myself satisfied with defendants' explanation; I may have said that no explanation they would give, so far as it went; my first interview with West was at his office; I do not recollect of Mr. HYDE introducing Mr. GALWAY to me; I think he one day pointed out a man who had just gone out of the store, and said that he was connected with the Anti-Gambling Association; I recognized him as GALWAY afterward, when I saw him in the Association office; I think I have stated everything connected with this matter, so far as I am personally concerned; when GALWAY handed me the letter, I stated that I had no doubt that Mr. HYDE believed, at the time, that I had been gambling; he acted in good faith; believed the reports of Mr. GALWAY told me that I did not answer the description he had given to Mr. HYDE; he did not read that description; he did not have it then, when I saw him at the office; the description I read was given to Mr. HYDE; does not remember if he read that; was doubtless written afterward; GALWAY said something about the man he described having red whiskers or sandy whiskers; I never told Mr. GALWAY that the Association had sufficient to make the investigation they did make at the instigation of Mr. HYDE; I may have said that I presumed Mr. HYDE told them to investigate further after they told him that they had been unable to find any gambling; this was when GALWAY brought the letter of apology to me.

By Mr. BRENNAN—I had an interview with Mr. J. D. KING with regard to the allegation made against him.

Mr. BRENNAN—Well, we'll have Mr. "Jaking" here to-morrow.

The examination was then adjourned till to-day at 2½ P. M.

A Bold Robbery in a Banking-House—A Thief Arrested by a Woman.

Yesterday afternoon, as Mrs. MARIA KEPPLER, of No. 24 Greenwich-street, was standing in front of the cashier's desk in the banking-office of VERMILYE & CO., at No. 18 Nassau-street, she laid down nine $100 national bank notes, which were scarcely there a second before the owner was astonished to see her $900 disappear in the hand of a man standing by her side. Mrs. KEPPLER immediately turned round and courageously seized the audacious robber by the arm, which prompt action had the effect to overawe the latter, and he surrendered himself without an effort to escape. He also handed the stolen money to Mrs. KEPPLER, and submitted to be detained until the arrival of an officer, who escorted him to the Tombs. When arraigned before Alderman COMMAN the prisoner gave the name of John Lane, and despite his being found in possession of the money, uttered the usual legal action that he was "not guilty." The Alderman held him for trial in default of bail.

BASE-BALL.

White Stockings vs. Union—Defeat of the Latter.

Yesterday the Chicago nine visited Tremont to play their match with the Union Club, of Morrisania. The latter had but just returned from a tour Southward, and having played with elastic balls their fielders were considerably "bunged up," BIRDSALL, their fine catcher, being entirely disabled. The White Stockings, therefore, had an easy task. The majority who witnessed the game seemed to realize the fact, and so kept away from the match. The attendance was very small, not over 300 being present. The contest was continued one-sided from the very start, the Chicago players scoring 4 to 2 in their first innings, while at the close of the third the totals stood as 14 to 1. In the last six innings the White Stockings added 14 more to their score, while the Unions added but 9, the game closing with the totals at 28 to 10 in favor of Chicago. The Unions, however, earned 7 runs to their opponents' 5; but the support given their pitcher was so bad that the Chicago nine had their first base given them as less than 17 times by errors. We append the full score:

Umpire—Mr. HAYFIELD, of the Mutual Club.

Time of Game—Two hours.

The umpiring was excellent, HAYFIELD keeping the pitchers and strikers up to the rules.

Today the White Stockings play the Star Club on the Capitoline Grounds, and a close and exciting contest is anticipated. A reporter for the Chicago Club is

THE ALEXANDER CASE.

Conclusion of the Examination Before the Surrogate—His Opinion of the Evidence—What Action He Proposes to Take.

The investigation into the whereabouts of the property of the late JOHN ALEXANDER, deceased, which has been going on at intervals for many weeks past, was resumed and concluded before Surrogate Hon. Hon. C. Hutchinson yesterday. Mr. A. A. REDFIELD, who has been indefatigable in ferreting out the mystery, not to say the roguery, connected with this case, appeared as counsel for Mrs. VIRGINIA C. BURKE, the daughter of Mr. ALEXANDER; and executrix of his late will and testament, assisted also by Ex-Judge FULLERTON. Mr. ANDREWS, of the firm of BURKE, DONOHUE & CO., appeared as counsel for Mrs. IRA GARDINER, the respondent.

Mr. REDFIELD then spoke as follows: My client, Mrs. Burke, is not present, but was, Mr. Gardiner two years; his house joins my house; last Summer Mr. Gardiner came out to my house; he said he wanted a moment's conversation; he said he was worried on my account; he said he had been talking about the pecuniary condition of Mr. GARDINER; I know him before; and since Mr. ALEXANDER's death I know of any change in his circumstances since ALEXANDER's death except what Mr. GARDINER told me; he said he had 5,000 of Central Pacific; he said when he was at his house, and that he had on his person a bag containing bonds which he had, he said, received from him when he was speechless and handed them to Dr. BRICKWAY; he said he had obtained, between $100 and $200 in money; he said when he was with Capt. ALEXANDER, he was with him (the Captain) he found her go to put it back; afterward GARDINER came to me and said he had got in trouble; he said to Mrs. Burke, Capt. ALEXANDER's daughter, that he had given him a large amount of bonds; I told him there would be no trouble in returning those bonds and would give them up; he said the Captain had promised to give them; I asked him if he had promised to buy a house with the money; don't remember that he ever said anything to me about a will of Capt. ALEXANDER; at one time Gardiner said he had his hands on Capt. ALEXANDER's neck; I did not know that the Capt. ALEXANDER's relatives in the world; afterward, when he told me he had been sued, I advised him to give up the bonds; the only reply he made was that he was in a bad condition, and had something to make them comfortable; it was before Mrs. BURKE made her appearance; he asked me if I had a house to sell; I told him I had one for about $4,000 or $5,000; I thought that was too small; I made no effort to buy a house for him; Mr. GARDINER said he was going to become man of his word—he said, GRAFF, I supposed he had indeed been drinking heavily or doing something in business; after I testified before the Coroner, Mr. GARDINER called on me and complained at my testimony; I told him I did not wish to talk about it; he said he had 5,000 of Central Pacific; one day we three talked with the Captain before his death about giving him something while he was alive, and that the Captain always said there was time enough after he had got done with it.

Mr. ANDREWS, for the respondents, declined to cross-examine the witness or ask him any questions.

WILLIAM GRAFF, sworn for the executrix—Mrs. Jas. W. GRAFF, the daughter of Mr. GARDINER, never consulted me about the bonds, that I recollect.

Q.—Were you asked whether she could retain the bonds or not? Witness declined to answer questions pertaining to private consultations with him as a lawyer; he claimed his privilege as an attorney and the question was not pressed. The bonds were brought to me, after Capt. ALEXANDER's death, in the presence of my father, with my consent, put them in my safe, where they remained perhaps a week; I never made any effort to sell the bonds; did not know the name of the bonds; don't think I ever expressed any opinion about them; they were coupon bonds or not; think there were four bonds; I never saw or heard of any other bonds that belonged to Capt. ALEXANDER; don't think my brother's wife was present when the bonds were brought to my office; am confident that my brother GEORGE never had possession of any of the bonds; will pledge my life that he never had, he never consulted me about any bonds; I never said a word to him; I never heard from any person whatever anything about any other bonds than the four previously mentioned; my brother GEORGE did not say anything to me about the necessity of taking the bonds out of the jurisdiction of the Court; I never made any suggestion of the kind; I may have suggested that I won't prefer not to have the bonds stay in my safe; I might have thought that there would be a safer place for them; I would not think I would have them in my possession; I suppose, from my brother's testimony, given in this case, that he took the bonds to my brother ADRIAN, in New-Jersey; I did not know at the time where he took them; my brother's wife never consulted me with regard to the bonds; neither did Mr. IRA GARDINER; I never bought any real estate or made any investments for my brother JAMES (not his wife); never received any money from them for any purpose.

No cross-examination.

CHAS. R. THOMPSON, employe of the Union Trust Company, of New-York, was sworn, and identified a receipt in the books of the Company marked No. 36, given by the Company to WHEELER H. PECKHAM, special administrator of the estate of JOHN ALEXANDER, for certain bonds, amounting altogether to $4,100. He said the bonds were deposited in the Company May 19, 1869.

No examination from respondent's counsel.

Counsel for the executrix next offered in evidence the last will and testament of JOHN ALEXANDER, (already published,) and also an order revoking the appointment of WHEELER H. PECKHAM, made in October last, as special collector of the estate of JOHN ALEXANDER.

Mrs. VIRGINIA C. BURKE was particularly an witness, when Mr. ANDREWS, on the ground of irrelevancy, objected to her testifying. The objection was overruled by the Surrogate.

The witness then testified that she was the sister-in-law of her father's estate; I arrived in New-York from New-Orleans a year ago last April; the reason she came was that she received a telegram from Mrs. Louise informing her of her father's death, which was the first intimation she had of it; I came to New-York, and getting an order from the Court, I went to see Mr. and Mrs. GARDINER with WHEELER H. PECKHAM; on arriving there Mr. PECKHAM demanded of Mrs. GARDINER the bonds belonging to my father; I was Mr. ALEXANDER's daughter; she took us up-stairs where we found the trunks of my father, broken open and in them an overcoat, an old hat, a pair of shoes and an unclaimed letter; that was all; this was all the property he left; when I turned to go, I said to Mrs. GARDINER if there was not something on my father's neck; she did not answer my question, and Mr. PECKHAM repeated it; she finally said there was something, but she did not know what it was; she said she had never seen the inside of it, but had given it to Judge BURKE, and that Judge BURKE had it them; she said nothing about any bonds.

No cross-examination.

Judge FULLERTON, for the respondents, contended that they had no further evidence to offer, and he thought they were entitled to some relief immediately. We make the application for relief now, said he.

The Surrogate asked if there was any order of the Superior Court in reference to the bonds in the Trust Company.

Mr. REDFIELD said, "No, Sir."

Mr. ANDREWS claimed that there was such an order, and that the testimony in this case showed there was.

Surrogate HUTCHINGS—Mr. WHEELER H. PECKHAM, as special administrator of the estate of JOHN ALEXANDER, brought a suit in the Superior Court to obtain possession of these bonds, but I don't see that there was any order entered by any Judge of the Superior Court directing the bonds to be deposited in the Trust Company. Now, if there was a private stipulation, the functions of Mr. PECKHAM have ceased. Mrs. BURKE having qualified as executrix under the last will and testament of her father; and if the Surrogate is satisfied from the testimony that the executrix is entitled to these bonds, she must have them, or security must be given under the statute.

Mr. ANDREWS insisted that the question should not be decided without giving Mrs. GARDINER's counsel a chance to be heard.

Surrogate HUTCHINGS—I think the poor woman, who has been seven years friendless from New-Orleans endeavoring to get justice done her by her father, is entitled to some justice in this City. I don't care about hearing any argument upon it. I do say that this case presents features of great atrocity as regards the conduct of these people toward this testator, Mrs. BURKE. The testimony even of the physician who resided in the house, is that Capt. ALEXANDER, at the time of the alleged gift of these bonds, was in a lethargic state and incapable of transacting any business.

Mr. ANDREWS—There is a suit pending in the Superior Court to determine that question.

Surrogate HUTCHINGS—Unless there is a direct order by a Judge of the Superior Court, made before this day, shown to me next Monday, directing these bonds to be deposited in the Trust Company, I shall make an order that the bonds be delivered over to Mrs. BURKE, as executrix of the last will and testament of JNO. ALEXANDER. Unless these parties give bonds according to the sixth section of the statute, I shall make the order on next Monday, and they can come here and be heard at that time.

The Court then adjourned.

The Duties of Police Surgeons.

Superintendent JOURDAN yesterday issued the following general order, which announces some important changes in the duties of Police Surgeons:

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT OF POLICE OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK, No. 300 MULBERRY-STREET, NEW-YORK, July 4, 1870.

To the Surgeons of Police:

GENERAL ORDER NO. 8.—At a meeting of the Board of Police held this day, the following resolutions were adopted, and are hereunto transmitted to the Force for their information and guidance, to wit:

Resolved, That the Surgeons of Police be directed to report to the Seventh Surgical District Office, in the precincts and area of which the district is composed, the same duties that are by the rules and regulations required to be performed at the Central Office. They shall also perform all the surgical duties which shall be required of the Central Department, but shall arrange hours of duty among themselves so that one of their number shall be at all times, day and night, on duty at the Central Department office in other districts than those over which the attendance of surgeons, when the service requires, shall be required.

Resolved, That whenever a surgeon of a precinct is required at a Station-house, the surgeon of the district shall be called; if not available, then shall be called the surgeon of other districts nearest to the Station-house where the service is required; and the surgeon shall transmit to the Board, at the end of each month, a report showing both the number of cases to which he was called during the month, in districts other than the one to which he was assigned.

JOHN JOURDAN, Superintendent.

GEORGE W. DIXON, Secretary.

POLICE TRIALS.

Extraordinary Calendar and Severe Wine-Operations of the Flying Artillery.

Commissioner MANSFIELD was confronted yesterday morning with the unusually large calendar of seventy cases. The number was so large in consequence of the fact that Superintendent JOURDAN's general roundsmen, who are known as the "Flying Artillery," had made a concerted movement of the force in various parts of the City in deputations that amounted to violations of the rules, and had made complaints against them. Of the twenty-one of them who appeared with the "Flying Artillery" charged with drinking while on duty, the majority of the officers and the remainder were fined sixty days' pay with forfeiture of their shields, and the remainder were fined thirty days' pay, amounting to $30 each, were taken from the delinquents by the Judge.

BERNARD TULLY, of the Nineteenth Precinct, was charged with brutally clubbing JAMES KING, a colored man, on Bedford, both of whom swore to the affair. Bedford, it appeared, had left his home about 1 o'clock in the morning by a noise in the stable, and was met at the door of TULLY, who said that he "had it in for him," and without further ado proceeded to club him, and the wife coming to the assistance of her husband, she was knocked down in the same way, and so brutally that she was confined to her bed for three weeks. On the other hand it was shown that TULLY, going by King's house, which is in Seventy-seventh-street, between Second and Third avenues, hearing a noise, stopped. In a moment King ran out, followed by his wife. TULLY asked what was the matter, and received an impudent answer. Tully drawled out "Go!" King followed and seized him by the throat, and Mrs. King endeavored to get him by the hair. He struck King twice on the arm to make him let go his hold, but did not strike her at all. King and wife went into their house, and when he attempted to follow to arrest King they bolted him out. Six days after Edward King was arrested and being arraigned before Justice BERRY was held to bail for the assault on the officer. The charge was dismissed.

JAMES AULD, GEORGE FLANDREAU, Nineteenth Precinct, and PETER HADDER and JAMES H. MORRIS, Twenty-first Precinct, were charged by City Sanitary Inspector MORRIS with permitting cattle to be driven through the streets during hours prohibited by the ordinance. Their cases were referred to the Board.

DIEDERICH BRUMMERHOP, of the Twenty-sixth Precinct, was arraigned for being late at roll-call on Saturday night, and when he did come he was without his cap and shield, and only gave a most singular reason for his tardiness and their absence by stating that having arrested a man for disorderly conduct some of the prisoner's friends threatened to get square with him, and that soon afterward being on post in a retired place, by flung a handkerchief in his face, after which he remembered nothing until he found himself entering the Station-house in a state of semi-unconsciousness. The witnesses were positive that there was no sign of liquor upon him, and chloroform was given as the cause of his condition. The case was referred to the Board.

The Land Grant Mortgage of the Des Moines Valley Road is for $4,500,000; the mortgage is a first lien upon the whole road and equipment, from the Missouri Eastern Section, 143 miles, from Keokuk to Des Moines. The Bonds are an exclusive Mortgage upon a Land Grant of 500,000 acres, and they usually bought and sold on the Lands, are sold and funded on lots to the purchasers. The principle is the same as in the Illinois Central and the Hannibal and St. Joseph Land Grant Mortgages, with the difference that the Des Moines Bonds bear Eight ₱ cent. interest in currency, in place of seven ₱ cent. The Land Trustees of the Illinois Central had to pay 120 per cent. for the Bonds drawn to extend the lands, at the date the Land Trustees of the Hannibal and St. Joseph paying 110 per cent., these being the limits respectively, although the Illinois Central Bonds were originally negotiated at a cost of 80 ₱ cent. and the Hannibal and St. Joseph at other figures. The Des Moines Land Trustees cannot sell in the Bonds under 120 ₱ cent., and periodical purchases must be made by so that price in order to convey the lands to purchasers in fee. Meanwhile the Bonds, if under par in the market, will be receivable at par in payment for the Lands. We may therefore safely estimate this 8 ₱ cent. Loan, offered by Messrs. CLARK, DODGE & Co. at 90 ₱ cent., as one of the most desirable investments of prospective profit to the buyer in the market. The Road is now opened North-west of Des Moines to its connection at Fort Dodge with the Dubuque and Sioux City line, 350 miles North-west of Keokuk.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

THE SPANISH CROWN.

Much uneasiness is still felt in Paris, owing to the complications growing out of the Spanish question. On Thursday night the Rentes at the Bourse touched the lowest point reached for years. The Spanish Minister in Paris is said to have received instructions to notify the French Government of the candidature of Prince LEOPOLD. Nothing definite has been heard from Prussia; and NAPOLEON, it is reported, will not be content with an evasive reply. PRIM is thought to have meant hostility when Spain notified the Great Powers of the choice. The Spanish Minister was notified on the 3d inst. GRAMMONT's dispatch to Spain was made public yesterday. In it, the Duke asks Spain "to renounce the only candidate for the throne who is altogether disagreeable." It is reported in Paris that all general officers of the Prussian army have been ordered to rejoin their respective corps without delay. The whole question is to be discussed in the French Senate on the 15th inst. The Spanish Minister was to start for Madrid last night, to endeavor to conciliate all parties. A conference of Ministers was held yesterday, at which Austria, England and Italy were represented. They sympathize with France. Military movements and commands are discussed and various rumors are afloat. A dispatch from Madrid states that MONTPENSIER has ordered his adherents to support the HOHENZOLLERN. Extracts from both the French and Spanish Press are given in full. The latter is divided on the question. The excitement in London continues intense, but the general sentiment is that war will be avoided.

EUROPE.

The dogma of infallibility, it is announced, will be proclaimed in Rome on the 17th inst., with great pomp and ceremony. The publication will be made in the Church of Leo IV., and the Pope will occupy the veritable chair of St. Peter. Although the vote on the last chapter, which pertains directly to infallibility, has not yet been taken, advices from Rome received in Paris and London are to the effect that the dogma will be adopted and proclaimed, as above stated....The Chinamen in Paris, fearing the popular anger, have carefully kept within doors since the dispatches in regard to the Pekin massacre were received; but the excitement in reference to the Spanish question has been such as to overshadow the news from China....In the British Parliament, yesterday, the Irish Land bill was passed by the Lords.... JOHN BRIGHT, it is reported, is restored to health.

CONGRESS.

In the Senate, yesterday, the first bill called up was that relieving from political disabilities some seventy-five Kentuckians. Among the names was that of GUSTAVUS W. SMITH, Ex-General in the Confederate army, and formerly Street Commissioner of this City. After some debate his name, and also that of BASIL DUKE, were stricken from the list, and the bill then passed. A general disability bill relieving about 5,000 of those engaged in the rebellion, was subsequently passed, after certain names had been stricken therefrom. St. Joseph, Mo., was made a port of delivery. It was ordered that the Army Appropriation bill be taken up today. A resolution of inquiry as to the emancipation of slavery in Cuba, was adopted. By a vote of 39 to 26 the Georgia bill was taken up, and, to expedite business, the House amendments to the bill, as passed by the Senate, were non-concurred in, and a Committee of Conference ordered. Pending a debate on a bill to prohibit the enforcement of contracts for servile labor, which involves the Chinese question, a recess was taken until evening. At the evening session the bill providing for the payment of the Hudson Bay claims was passed, and a committee of conference appointed on the Georgia bill. The consideration of the Coolie Contract bill was resumed. Without disposing of the question, the Senate, at 10½ P. M., went into Executive Session, and subsequently adjourned.

In the House, a large amount of business was transacted. The Arkansas contested election case of CAMERON vs. ROOTS, was tabled. Reports from Conference Committees on the Post-office appropriations, and upon the bills for the relief of certain army and naval officers, were concurred in. The River and Harbor Appropriation bill was passed, all the amendments being agreed to, and it now goes to the President. The bill in relation to enlistments in the Marine Corps, and several bills of minor importance, were also passed. At 12½ P. M. the additional Deficiency bill, covering items amounting to $2,723,525, was taken up and debated. Mr. DAWES made another speech in favor of economy. He was replied to by Mr. PERSHING, and then the discussion assumed a personal character. The subject of publishing debates in the Globe was also again discussed. The bill was finally passed, with several amendments. The remainder of the session was devoted to reports from the Judiciary Committee. A bill regulating the mode of ratifying constitutional amendments was passed by a vote of 130 to 34. The still makes it unlawful for any State officer to certify a repeal of a ratification when once made, and affixes a penalty of fine and imprisonment for an attempt to repeal such ratification when once consummated. A bill in reference to the resignation of judicial officers incapacitated by disease to discharge their duties, allowing the President to accept said resignation, the salary to be continued, was also passed, and, at 4½ P. M., the House adjourned.

GENERAL.

A most destructive fire broke out in Manchester, N. H., about 3 o'clock yesterday morning, which burned over six acres of buildings, destroying property valued at $250,000, insured to about one-half the amount. No lives were lost, but 300 families were rendered homeless. The greater part of the town of Millerton, Cal., was burned on the 3d inst.

In the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania yesterday, among other cases decided was that of Dr. SCHMUCKER. The motion for opening judgment in a further writ of error was refused.

The New-Hampshire State Fair will be held at Manchester during the first week of September, and every effort is being made to make it a great success.

On Thursday afternoon, the Commercial Oil Works of KIRKPATRICK & LYONS, at Pittsburg, Penn., were destroyed by fire, involving a loss of $20,000. And yesterday morning the freight warehouses of the St. Louis and Vandalia and Illinois Central Railway Companies, located at St. Louis, were burned to the ground, together with their contents. The loss at the latter fire is heavy.

Judgments in railway bond cases, to the amount of $[illegible], were rendered at a recent session of the United States Circuit Court in Iowa.

A Synod of the Presbyterian Church, both branches, is now in session at St. Louis, Mo.

At the Iron Moulders' Convention, in Philadelphia, yesterday, a resolution was introduced protesting against the introduction of coolie labor in the country.

The Whitbeck anti-rent trial was continued, yesterday, at Ballston. Judge A. B. JAMES, of Ogdensburg, is the presiding Justice. The prosecution will probably rest the case today, and it is expected that it will be concluded by Thursday next.

The Knights of St. Crispin held a meeting in San Francisco, last evening, to protest against the further introduction of Chinese laborers. The census deputies in California have received instructions from Marshal MONAIN to carefully enumerate the Chinese, as, under the Fourteenth Amendment, classifying them as residents, the State, it is said, will be entitled to another Congressman. Several hundred Chinamen left San Francisco, yesterday, for Georgia.

The Pullman palace cars were on Wednesday withdrawn from the Central Pacific Railway.

A challenge from McCOOLE to ALLEN, to fight for a belt and the excursion money, was yesterday issued in St. Louis.

The examination in the case of the missing bonds belonging to the estate of the late JOHN ALEXANDER, was concluded before the Surrogate, Mr. HUTCHINGS, yesterday. The Surrogate announced that on Monday next he would grant an order for the delivery to Mrs. BUNKER, the daughter and executrix of Mr. ALEXANDER, of the bonds deposited in the Union Trust Company, unless there had been an order of the Superior Court directing them to be kept there pending the litigation now going on in that Court.

The engine-house and shop of the Brockville and Ottawa Railway, at Brockville, Canada, was burned on Thursday night. Loss, $100,000.

The Dominion Government has been notified by the Home authorities that a sufficient force will be retained in Canada to garrison Quebec and Halifax.

The Grand Sire of the Order of Odd Fellows leaves today on the Bremen steamer Main, to establish Odd Fellowship in Germany and other foreign lands. The steamer Seth Low will take a party of his friends down the bay to see him off, leaving from Franklin-street at 12 o'clock M.

Affairs about the Custom-house were quiet yesterday, and the parties interested in the proposed changes were disposed to await the result of the contest at Washington. It is not expected here that a decision will be arrived at before Tuesday of next week, as the testimony in the hands of Senator FERRY relating to Mr. MURPHY, is of a very voluminous character, and it will take some time to consider it.

The Prospect in Europe.

The discussion in the French Senate on the Spanish difficulty will not take place until the 15th instant, and in the meantime there will doubtless be a great effort made to preserve the peace of Europe. The feeling in England appears to be decidedly on the side of France, and it would be very strange if it were otherwise. In the first place, the English people have had enough of being dragged through the mire through the German alliances of their own royal family. They would be little disposed to see the Government acting in a way to suit the convenience of the most aggressive Power in Europe. The feeling in favor of NAPOLEON is very strong in England, partly because the Emperor has proved himself a faithful ally for some years past, and partly because the ambition of Prussia has not been regarded with much more favor there than in France. The suspicion that BISMARCK and PRIM had joined in an intrigue to extend the power of the Prussian house beyond the Pyrenees would be amply sufficient to excite great opposition in England.

That military preparations should be going on in France can scarcely be regarded as a very serious indication of the turn which affairs are likely to take. The Emperor was never liable to the weakness of placing himself in a position where he could be caught at a disadvantage. He would probably not be unwilling to enter at once into a struggle which has long been impending. If it be true that his popularity in France is on the decline, he could not obtain a better opportunity of retrieving it than by seeking a war with Prussia. A successful war would do more to gratify the French people than any civil or political benefit the Emperor could confer upon them. Even the preparations which are now going on in Paris will be sufficient to rouse the blood of the people. Unless Prussia recedes from the position she has taken up, there seems to be no escape from a war in which, whatever might befall the principal contestants, Spain would almost certainly be crushed. The inclination of the rest of Europe would probably be to narrow the area of hostilities as much as possible; but events might soon occur which would leave England, Russia and Austria no alternative but to join in the struggle. It is the knowledge of this fact in England which has caused so much excitement in stocks and consols. It is impossible for any one to say that if France and Prussia entered into a war, England would certainly be able to keep out of it. Mr. GLADSTONE is for peace at all times, and almost at any price; but the voice of the people sometimes drowns that of the Prime Minister. There are many indications that, if sufficient provocation were given, a war would not be regarded with invincible repugnance by the bulk of the English people.

The Income Tax.

A correspondent addresses us in reference to the article we published yesterday on the income tax. He says:

"I have read with much interest the article in this morning's TIMES, in regard to the continuance of the income tax. I do not think it touches the tenderest point in the matter. There are few, comparatively, who pay this tax. Let us concede this; but all are required to come forward and disclose their private accounts. Hence you will find that all the non-payers are quite as bitter against the tax as are those who pay. The intrusive character of the tax is its very worst feature, and its continuance will injure the party that sustains it."

This point is always worth consideration; and although we have once or twice addressed ourselves to it, we are quite willing to answer it once more.

In the first place, the income tax as an invention for raising money on behalf of the Government ought to be kept distinct from mistakes which are made in the method of levying it. If we have adopted a bungling method, let us blame our own machinery, and not an import which answers its purpose very well in other countries, and might be made extremely useful in this.

Our correspondent says that "all are required to come forward and disclose their private accounts," whether they are actually liable to the tax or not. This is not quite accurately stated. The assessment paper is filled in, and taken to the Assessor, who requires a statement under oath that the return is truthfully made. As a rule, people are not required to disclose details of their private accounts. An Assessor here and there may, for aught we know, be tempted to make the most of his "little brief authority;" but a letter to Mr. DELANO would soon rectify that. In nine cases out of ten, a man's statement that his return is correct is received without hesitation.

But people might be secured still more effectually against what our correspondent calls the "intrusive character" of the income tax. The assessment paper should be left at every house, and returned to the Assessor properly filled in. The citizen ought not to be required to appear before the Assessor at all, unless in cases of dispute. When the assessment paper is not returned, an assessment should be made according to the best judgment of the Collector. The citizen might appeal against this if he thought proper, but he could not complain of being put to that inconvenience, since it would be brought upon him by his own neglect.

It may be said that there would be cheating, and that false returns would be made. So they are now, if we may believe the opponents of the tax. In all probability there would be less dishonesty under the proposed system than under that at present in force. People who are really liable to the tax would pay it without much reluctance if they only knew that thereby they were lightening their other burdens. The more you pay in income tax, the less you ought to be called upon to pay in other ways. The income tax is preferable to most indirect taxes, because so little of it is lost in collection; and therefore in the end it is the cheapest tax which people can pay. They ought not, however, to be subjected to the operation of the "screw" in all directions at once. With reduced duties on articles used in domestic life, and relief from vexatious imposts devised in the interests of monopolists, a moderate income tax could scarcely be regarded as a great evil. Most people, however, prefer to have the Government take money out of their pockets without their seeing exactly how the thing is done, and this feeling explains much of the hostility to the income tax.

Organized Emigration.

Efforts to promote emigration are abundant, but of organized emigration, with its manifold advantages, economic and social, there is little or none. Several of the Western States have long employed active agents to make their resources and advantages known abroad; California has been added to the number; and since their reconstruction, two or three of the Southern States have tried to turn the example to their own account. Whether these endeavors have greatly augmented the volume of emigration, we are unable to decide; but that they have contributed to the rapid settlement of Wisconsin, Minnesota, and other portions of the North-west, there can be no reasonable doubt. Equally effective have been the plans of the older of the land-grant railroad companies, the multiplication of which promises yet greater activity in this direction.

The time is propitious for measures intended to promote and facilitate emigration. In England, especially, the subject attracts unusual attention. Demands are made upon the Government for aid to enable multitudes of artisans to escape from the struggle which seems each succeeding year to consign the working classes of that country to deeper and more hopeless poverty. The intervention of the House of Commons has been invoked, but to no purpose. The leave-alone principle is omnipotent in the policy of the British Government whenever the contest between capital and labor is concerned. Mr. GOSCHEN undertakes to prove that the alleged sufferings of poverty are more imaginary than real—that the working people of England are well off, and that the trouble arises from their inability to appreciate the fact. So the Gladstone Government folds its hands, and leaves emigration movements to take their course. Beyond sending a few hundreds in troop-ships to Canada, it does nothing. Philanthropic societies have been formed here and there to assist emigration to the colonies; but all that is accomplished in this way is as a mere drop in the vast human stream which ceaselessly flows from the old countries of Europe to the New World.

The great mass of independent emigration finds its way hither. We speak of the self-reliant classes, who, though sorely pressed, are able to seek new homes without the aid of Government, or benevolent associations. The small farmer, tired of a tenancy which yields little beyond a living, the mechanic, whose thrift has enabled him to lay aside a small provision for a rainy day, but who sees no future for his children amidst a competition that is intense and merciless—both turn their thoughts to the United States. They go to the Western States, and after a season of trial, ordinarily attain independence and comparative prosperity. They are deterred awhile by the absence of systematic arrangements for their mutual benefit; the expense and discomfort of the voyage, and of the inland journey, are heightened by the same circumstances; and the same cause operates to their loss and discouragement after they reach the State they have selected. The help which the States or the railroad companies render ends abruptly just where organization should begin.

Voluntary, self-reliant organization has in many instances proved most beneficial. Scattered over Wisconsin and Iowa are well-to-do settlements, whose foundations were laid in some European association. There are settlements formed by societies, whose members—mechanics in the old land, farmers in the new—testify to the value of the co-operative principle as applied to emigration. Kansas is now reaping profit from the same source. These movements have for the most part been crude; imperfect, considering the scanty resources that are available, they must almost necessarily be. But they serve to indicate the desire on the part of large bodies of intending emigrants to avail themselves of methods of mutual help, and at the same time to show how those on this side who would promote immigration may usefully enlarge and amend their plans.

Organization is the one thing needful. Hundreds of thousands will come, as hitherto, without it. States will grow and corporations will derive gain from their lands, whether there be organized emigration or not. But it remains yet to be recognized how much growth and settlement might be accelerated, and the introduction of most desirable classes secured, by the adoption of measures that would confer on emigrants all the benefits of associated effort up to their arrival at their destination, and thereafter secure to them comforts and facilities for which, under other circumstances, they must wait a long period. The transfer of a family from a far-off home to a new land in the West, is not a trifling enterprise even to those most favorably situated. To the mass of emigrants it is a task involving more trials and hardships than most of us are able to comprehend. Many of these trials nothing can avert. But the greater number might be lessened, if not extinguished, by judicious organization. The wonder is, that a principle admitted to be so valuable in other matters has been so generally neglected in this.

Representation in Congress.

The new Apportionment bill has passed the Senate with very little opposition. It fixes the number of Representatives at three hundred, the proportion in excess of the present number to be elected by general ticket. The increase was, of course, the result of an unwillingness to deprive existing Congressional districts of their Representatives, which would have happened in some of the Eastern and Middle States if the present number of Representatives had been retained. The movement is, doubtless, destined to enlarge the size of the House of Representatives to an extent we cannot now foresee. It will be well to look at the history of the formation of that body, and point out some of the consequences of increasing the number of its members.

The Constitution provides for the election of Representatives of the people, and for the purpose of ascertaining the rights of each State, a census is ordered to be taken every ten years—new States admitted during the interval being entitled to one Representative only until after the census following their admission. It was provided that no Congressional district should consist of less than thirty thousand persons, and Gen. WASHINGTON went so far as to veto the apportionment of the surplus Representatives to States which had the largest fractions of the requisite number to constitute another district, upon the ground that it was unconstitutional. This ratio gave 120 members to the House of Representatives. Each successive census increased the number until it reached 233, where it has remained for many years, the districts becoming much larger with the increasing population of the country. The present census will show us whether this basis is increased or diminished by the change in the apportionment from 233 to 300 members of Congress.

The power of the United States Government has been exercised largely since the war in matters which Congress formerly left exclusively to the States. The taxing power has been put in force in a more direct manner than of old, and the acts of the National Government have been made to bear more directly upon individuals. Where power is acquired by an organized body, it is usually retained much more tenaciously than it can be by an individual; and we must look for the continuance of this authority of Congress wherever it is incidental to the taxing power. This renders necessary a large amount of legislation on the part of Congress, which was formerly conducted by the several States. It is, therefore, more and more important that the people should be represented in Congress as largely as is consistent with the facilities for transacting business. Such a body may become too unwieldy for efficient action. While, therefore, we recognize the necessity of some increase, it is all important that enlargements in the future should be made with the greatest caution.

Another point of great moment in the effect which such an increase will have upon the relative efficiency of the House of Representatives and the Senate. By the admission of new States the membership of the latter body has been materially enlarged, while the House has remained stationary at 233 members, and the present addition of sixty-seven will not more than restore the proportions which the two bodies had to one another forty-six years ago. But the Senators, as the representatives of States, cannot be increased indefinitely. It will, therefore, be well to consider which body will have the advantage on subjects of legislation common to both. The smaller the body the more efficient will be its action. This principle was recognized by the framers of the Constitution when they gave to the Senate executive powers not to be shared by the other House, such as the authority to make treaties and appointments. The peculiarly representative character of the other House is recognized in its exclusive right to originate money bills. With these exceptions, the ordinary powers of legislation are substantially shared by each. The action of the Senate, rather than of the House, has been looked to by the country during the present session as likely to shape the legislation of the year. Work of a higher grade will naturally be expected from the Senate, but the power of organization, of combining to produce results, must be even a greater cause of efficient action. If we look for the source of the great power which Congress has acquired in the past few years at the expense of the Executive, we shall undoubtedly find it in the organization of the Committee of Fifteen, to which was delegated the first right of reporting on all measures for the reconstruction of the Union. Had this authority been exercised by the two Houses of Congress directly, it is scarcely probable that they would have acquired so complete a control of the situation as the Committee managed to seize and retain.

It is to the last degree important that the system of checks which the two Houses impose upon each other should not be materially disturbed. The balance of power aimed at by the framers of the Constitution in the organization of Congress has hitherto been well preserved; but the Legislature ought never to become absolved from constant watchfulness on the part of the people.

Shot by a Burglar.

A more shocking crime than that which was perpetrated on Tuesday night, at Milford, Conn., we are seldom called upon to record. Murders and outrages in the barroom and the street are unfortunately but too common. When a man is struck down on his own threshold, as in the case of Mr. ROGERS in this City in the Winter of 1868, the event excites unusual interest, for it appeals to the domestic sympathies of every one in the community. In this new instance the circumstances are, if possible, even more distressing. There are many nervous persons who, when they hear strange noises about their houses at night, lie trembling with apprehension lest burglars should have entered their premises. What is generally an unfounded alarm, or nothing more formidable than an attack of nightmare, proved a frightful reality in the town of Milford on Tuesday night.

Mr. NATHAN FENN, a respectable country merchant, appears to have been a mark for thieves for some time past. Many attempts had been made to break into his house, and Mr. FENN appears to have been taught habits of caution, for on Tuesday night, on retiring to rest, he put all the money he had in the place, about two hundred dollars, under his pillow. He was fast asleep when, at 2 o'clock in the morning, his wife became convinced that she heard a burglar in the room. She roused her husband, and as soon as he understood what was the matter, he rose and followed the man into an inner room. The wife threw up the window and screamed out for help, but she had scarcely time to do that before the catastrophe occurred. Mr. FENN, it is supposed, had courageously seized the robber, and was doubtless trying to make sure of his prisoner. All that we know for certain is that Mrs. FENN heard a pistol shot, and in a moment afterward her husband staggered into the room holding his hand to his side, and exclaiming, "Wife, I am shot." He fell to the ground, and died in a quarter of an hour.

The whole occurrence must have seemed like an awful dream to the unhappy wife. The household was aroused, and the neighbors called in—but in the general tumult and agitation the assassin had no difficulty in making his escape. He was seen by Mrs. FENN to run from the premises, and to be joined by an accomplice—and then the two ruffians disappeared together. The heartfelt sympathies of the public will be with the poor wife and children who are thus suddenly plunged into the deepest affliction. When the head of a household is removed by death in the ordinary course of nature, the sorrow of the survivors is poignant enough. But for a wife to see her husband perish suddenly by violent means, in the dead of night, and before there has been time to offer him the solace of affection or religion—this is a fate which the hardest heart cannot think upon unmoved. We cannot attempt to proffer consolation to Mrs. FENN in this appalling situation, but we may all hope to see the infamous assassin who committed this deed brought to justice. There must be some means of hunting him down. The Police ought to be everywhere on the alert to watch for the two criminals, accursed of heaven who slunk out of Milford on Wednesday morning, with the blood of a fellow creature crying out from the ground against them.

The Nature of a Holiday.

After Christmas there is probably no epoch of crime. The same unfortunate phenomenon is repeated whenever a general holiday occurs. The Fourth of July is no exception to the rule. We expect noise, excitation, and many accidents on that day. People who play with gunpowder must expect to get burned. Of course there is a limit to this diversion, and the most ardent patriotism ought to hesitate before selecting the neighborhood of a hospital for its fireworks of joy. Capt. MAYNE REID, in a letter to a morning contemporary, feelingly sets forth the sufferings of the patients in St. Luke's Hospital from this cause on the last Fourth of July. It is easy to conceive, as he alleges, that death has not only been accelerated, but actually caused, by the nervous excitement and torture resulting from such a disgraceful outrage as we could scarcely believe, if we did not know it to be an annual occurrence, as even thirty years ago. But the Senators, as the representatives of States, cannot be interested

The New-York Collectorship Question—Prompt Dispatch of Business in the House—All the Appropriation Bills Disposed of—Conference on the Funding Bill—Discussion of the Georgia Bill—Ratification of Constitutional Amendment—Miscellaneous.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, July 8.—The statement to the effect that Mr. GRINNELL has not resigned his position as Collector, and had never asked for the Naval Office, excites some surprise here, where it is known that at a consultation held here a month ago or more, Mr. GRINNELL being present, it was decided that he should place his resignation at the disposal of the President; and where the further fact is known that subsequently Mr. GRINNELL wrote to the President giving certain reasons why, if he retired from the Collectorship, he must have the Naval Office; that thereupon an effort was made to fill some other position for Mr. GRINNELL, so that the necessity for the removal of Gen. MERRITT might be avoided; that the effort failed because Mr. GRINNELL insisted on the Naval Office; and that then the President intimated to some of Gen. MERRITT's friends that in order to comply with Mr. GRINNELL's request, Gen. MERRITT would have to go. These facts are pretty well known here. There have been no new developments in the case of the New-York nominations today. The Committee on Commerce meet to-morrow morning at 4 o'clock to hear the friends and opponents of Mr. MURPHY. The objections will be chiefly on the score of political heresy; but your Correspondent sees no reason to change the opinion already expressed, that Mr. MURPHY will be confirmed. The Commerce Committee will act to-morrow; and should there be an Executive Session all the nominations will be reported.

THE EXECUTIVE BUSINESS.

The statement telegraphed hence that the President will convene the Senate in Executive Session after the adjournment, has no foundation. He will not do so, if it can possibly be avoided, and to that end all the executive business requiring action at this session will be sent in early next week. The President himself desires the business advanced as rapidly as possible, as he expects to leave for his cottage at Long Branch on the 20th inst.

THE NEW ATTORNEY-GENERAL.

Attorney-General AKERMAN was sworn into office by Justice WYLIE, of the District Supreme Court, today. He subsequently attended the Cabinet meeting. Judge HOAR left this afternoon for his home in Massachusetts.

PROMPT DISPATCH OF BUSINESS IN THE HOUSE.

The House of Representatives is, in one sense, resting on its oars. It has now disposed of all the absolutely important business, and is now waiting the return of measures from the Senate which receive either concurrence or non-concurrence, and reference to a committee of conference. There has not been a session for years when, at such a late day, the business has been so well advanced in the popular body. It is usual to hold night sessions constantly for the last four weeks; but there has not been one in the House in a month. This is due in the main to the fact that the House meets at 11 and sits till 4, working steadily all the time, and also to the fact that Mr. DAWES, Chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, has pressed his bills with a wise discretion, and now has the satisfaction of knowing that every bill can become a law with ease and without confusion or error, before the final adjournment on Friday next. The last Appropriation bill passed today—the Supplemental Deficiency, the chief item in which is $1,500,000 for the ninth census.

THE FUNDING BILL.

The Conference Committee on the Funding bill met this morning, and speedily developed serious grounds for disagreement, which indicate some doubt of their ability to reconcile their differences. The Senate managers are firmly of the opinion that the rate of interest fixed by the House—four per cent.—is entirely too low, and that no part of the debt can be funded at that rate. They also insist on retaining the section of the Senate bill which provides for foreign agencies; and they, moreover, expressed their opposition, in the discussion which ensued, to the House section providing for the reception on gold deposits at three per cent. interest. Without coming to any conclusions the conference adjourned, to meet at the call of the Chairman. Another meeting was held at 8 o'clock, but no results were reached. The conference will convene again to-morrow morning. At the evening session of the Senate Messrs. HOWARD, HAMLIN and THURMAN were announced as conferees on the Funding bill.

RATIFICATION OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

In the House, this afternoon, Judge BINGHAM reported, and passed under a suspension of the rules, his bill providing a mode for determining the ratification of constitutional amendments. This bill was recently given in full in the TIMES. No amendments were made today. It supplies a much needed want.

THE GEORGIA BILL.

The Georgia bill was most happily disposed of in the Senate today by a motion to non-concur in the House amendment, and refer the bill to a committee of conference. There was a strong desire on the part of such men as Messrs. HOWARD, WILLIAMS and MORTON, to concur at once in the House bill; but as they were evidently not strong enough to carry it, and as such a motion involved a prospect of further tiresome and weary discussion, and as a motion to non-concur was not debatable, the latter prevailed. It places the admission of the State at this session among the events altogether probable, as it virtually takes the question out of the arena of debate in that very voluble body, the Senate. They may spend some time on the conference report, of course; but it is not very probable. The opinion seems to be that the Committee will agree to a proposition not materially different from the House bill passed week before last.

THE ARMY APPROPRIATIONS.

Senator WILSON today succeeded in getting the Army Appropriation bill set for consideration at 12 o'clock to-morrow, in the Senate. It is understood to be his intention to move the principal part of the Army bill rejected in the Senate last night, in the hope of getting it accepted as an amendment. The House would undoubtedly agree to this. Otherwise it is extremely probable that all efforts at reorganization of the army will fail for this session.

THE M'GARRAHAN CLAIM.

The House Judiciary Committee, to-day, decided adversely on the celebrated McGarraban claim, by 4 to 4, on the question whether the Committee should take any action toward enabling the New Idria Mining Company to perfect their title to the Pancho Grande tract. The Committee were evenly divided—yeas 5, nays 5. This ends the matter for this session.

THE RIVER AND HARBOR APPROPRIATIONS.

The River and Harbor Appropriation bill, as amended by the Senate, was, on recommendation of the Committee on Commerce, promptly concurred in by the House this morning. The bill as passed appropriates about $9,000,000, of which New-York gets $670,000, as follows:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Hell Gate and East River | $250,000 | Little Sodus Bay | $5,000 |
| Hudson River | 60,000 | Buffalo | 30,000 |
| Plattsburg | 10,000 | Dunkirk | 35,000 |
| Ogdensburg | 15,000 | Oswego | 10,000 |
| Oswego | 20,000 | Oak Orchard | 5,000 |
| Pulaskyville | 5,000 | Big Sodus Bay | 5,000 |

REMOVAL OF POLITICAL DISABILITIES.

The Senate, today, removed the political disabilities of nearly 4,000 persons. The small bill of Senator McCREERY, comprising only Kentucky, was first passed, after the name of the rebel Gen. GUSTAVUS SMITH and Basil Duke had been stricken out. The large bill of the Special Committee on Disabilities was then taken up, and passed without amendment.

THE CONSULAR APPROPRIATIONS.

The report of the Conference Committee on the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill, was today submitted to the Senate, and agreed to.

THE CHINESE.

Senator STEWART got his bill to prohibit contracts for servile labor before the Senate at the close of the afternoon, and it occupied the whole evening session. Messrs. CAMERON, DAVIS and NYE spoke against the Chinamen, while Mr. HOWARD spoke in their favor. Mr. SUMNER made a speech praising Chinese character and civilization, and opposing restrictions upon their immigration, and he offered his amendment striking the word "white" from the Naturalization laws. As 10½ o'clock became evident that no decision could be reached to-night, and discussion ensued upon fixing some time when a vote should be taken; but Mr. CONKLING finally moved and carried an Executive Session.

WILLIAMS, the Chief Engineer of the Tehuantepec Railway Company, telegraphs from Havana that he has returned from the City of Mexico on his way to New-York with the maps, plans and profiles of the location of the road, approved by the Government of that country. Col. WILLIAMS recently crossed the Isthmus in company with the Mexican Commissioner. While there, he, in accordance with instructions, made new reconnoissance, and ascertained that there is a sufficiency of water to supply a ship canal.

ALASKA SEAL FISHERY.

The Secretary of the Treasury will receive sealed proposals until noon of Wednesday, the 20th of July, for the exclusive right to take fur seals upon the islands of St. Paul and St. George, Alaska, for the term of twenty years from the 1st day of May, 1870, agreeably to the provisions of an act approved July 1, 1870, entitled "An act to prevent the extermination of fur-bearing animals in Alaska." COPYRIGHTS.

The President having approved the act to consolidate and amend the laws relating to patents and copyrights, the entire business of registering copyright publications is now transferred to the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, instead of being under the charge of the District Clerks and officers of the United States Courts. # FORTY-FIRST CONGRESS.

SECOND SESSION.

SENATE...WASHINGTON, Friday, July 8.

POLITICAL DISABILITIES OF KENTUCKIANS.

On motion of Mr. McCREERY the bill relieving the political disabilities of some seventy-five Kentuckians was taken up, when various objections to the bill were made by Messrs. HOWARD and DRAKE.

Mr. McCREERY explained that fifty-three of the names had been reported upon favorably by the Committee on Disabilities.

Mr. CONKLING, referring to the name of GUSTAVUS W. SMITH, formerly Street Commissioner of New-York City, which appeared in the bill, expressed his surprise that a man who was educated and nurtured at the public cost, and had drawn his sword against the country which gave it to him, should come here so hastily to seek condonement for his offenses.

Mr. McCREERY replied that Gen. SMITH had done less to forward the rebellion than did Gen. LONGSTREET.

Mr. CAMERON recognized a difference between the two cases in the fact that when SMITH went South he had first resisted of his sacrifice for the rebel cause in abandoning a lucrative office. As to LONGSTREET, he thought he never ought to have received the position he now holds; that his appointment was a wrong to the men of the army and navy; and that Senators were bound to consult the feelings of relatives of the slain of the war on this side of the line.

Mr. CONKLING moved to strike out GUSTAVUS W. SMITH, and also that of BASIL W. DUKE, were then stricken from the bill. The discussion was continued upon the propriety of striking out twenty names which had not received the sanction of the Committee on Disabilities. The bill relieving the political disabilities of some five thousand persons, reported from the Committee, was moved as an amendment, but subsequently withdrawn.

Mr. DRAKE moved to except all who had held office—Federal or State office—in violation of the Fourteenth amendment. Rejected—yeas 10, nays 44.

The bill then passed by the requisite two-thirds vote—yeas 44, nays 6.

GENERAL DISABILITY BILL.

On motion of Mr. ROBERTSON, the General Disabilities bill, relieving the political disabilities of about 9,000 persons, was taken up. Additional names were proposed for insertion; among others that of Gen. O. P. MORGAN, of Tennessee, in regard to whom it was objected that he had left his seat in the United States Senate at the breaking out of the war to take part in the rebellion.

Messrs. HOWARD, SUMNER and YATES opposed the admission to amnesty of every man who had formerly held office under the Government and left to join the rebellion. The name was finally withdrawn.

On motion of Mr. ROBERTSON, a number of names were stricken out.

A motion to strike out the name of Ex-Senator JOHNSON, of Arkansas, was negatived, after a statement that his official term had expired before the rebellion, that he then declined to be a candidate for re-election, and had since accepted the situation in good faith.

The bill then passed.

A NEW PORT OF DELIVERY.

Mr. CORBETT, from the Committee on Commerce, reported the House bill making St. Joseph, Mo., a port of delivery. Passed.

THE ARMY.

Mr. WILSON gave notice that he would, on Saturday, move to take up the ARMY Appropriation bill, and would offer as an amendment the substance of the Army bill lost on the table last night, omitting the objectionable rider.

The Conference Committee's report on the bill for the relief of certain officers of the army was submitted and considered.

CUBAN BELLIGERENCY.

On motion of Mr. ANTHONY, a resolution was adopted calling on the President for any information in his possession relating to the emancipation of slavery in Cuba, and for correspondence not heretofore communicated concerning the questions between the United States and Great Britain.

THE GEORGIA BILL.

On motion of Mr. HOWARD, the Georgia bill was taken up—yeas 29 to nays 24. With a view of cutting off debate, the Senate adopted a motion by Mr. POMEROY to non-concur in the House amendments to the bill as passed by the Senate, and to appoint a committee of conference, by a vote of 34 yeas to 12 nays.

CONSULAR AND DIPLOMATIC APPROPRIATIONS.

The report of the Conference Committee on the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation bill was submitted, and adopted.

THE CHINESE QUESTION.

The Senate at 4½ o'clock took up a bill to prohibit the enforcement of contracts for servile labor, relative to the Chinese and other contracts. Mr. CASSERLY offered and advocated an amendment, which, if adopted, would in effect strike out the bill.

At 4½ o'clock the Senate took a recess till evening.

EVENING SESSION.

THE HUDSON'S BAY CLAIMS.

The Senate met at 7½ o'clock.

The joint resolution making an appropriation for payment to the British Government for settle the claims of the Hudson's Bay and Puget Sound Agricultural Company, was taken up, on motion of Mr. SUMNER, and passed.

CONFERENCE COMMITTEE ON THE GEORGIA BILL.

The Vice-President announced as the Senate Committee of Conference on the Georgia bill, Messrs. HOWARD, HAMLIN and THURMAN. He remarked that in consequence of the dissolution of the mover of the Committee of Conference (Mr. POMEROY) to be appointed on the Committee, he had experienced some embarrassment in selecting a committee which would represent the views of the majority in the votes taken, by which two months ago the POMEROY substitute was adopted, and today the House amendments were non-concurred in.

THE CHINESE QUESTION RESUMED.

The bill to prohibit the enforcement of contracts for servile labor, applicable to Chinese coolie importation, was taken up and debated at length. Remarks were made by Mr. CASSERLY in advocacy of his amendment to make the bill more efficient; by Mr. DAVIS in unqualified opposition to Chinese immigration or extending to that class of immigrants any political rights, and by Mr. HOWARD in eulogy of Chinese civilization and good government.

Mr. SUMNER renewed his amendment to be had reference to the Naturalization bill, extending naturalization to all foreigners alike, regardless of race or color.

Messrs. EDMUNDS and CAMERON favored the postponement of the subject until the results of Chinese immigration were more fully developed.

At 10½ o'clock the Senate went into Executive Session, and soon after adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

On motion of Mr. PAINE, the Arkansas contested election case of CAMERON against ROOTS, was laid on the table.

LABORERS ON THE PUBLIC WORKS.

Mr. JULIAN asked leave to present the petition of 900 colored laborers of Washington, praying for justice and fair play by the authorities of the city in the employment of laborers on the public works of the city. Objection was made, and Mr. SENDALL made a suggestion as to including Chinese. Mr. JULIAN thereupon withdrew the petition.

REPORTS FROM CONFERENCE COMMITTEES.

Mr. DAWES, from the Committee of Conference on the Post-office Appropriation bill, made a report, which was agreed to.

Mr. ASPER, from the Committee of Conference on the bill for the relief of certain officers of the army, made a report, which was agreed to.

Mr. ANCONA, from the Committee of Conference, on the bill to place the name of CHAS. H. PENDLETON on the Navy Register, as Lieutenant-Commander on the active list, made a report which was agreed to. It amends the bill by adding the name of RICHARD P. LEMOY.

RIVER AND HARBOR APPROPRIATIONS.

Mr. SAWYER, from the Committee on Commerce, reported back the Senate amendment to the River and Harbor Appropriation bill, and moved a concurrence.

Mr. DAWES stated that he could not and would not vote for the amendment, and he recommended that the appropriation for river and harbor purposes, should be confined to the important channels of trade and navigation, and not frittered away in improving small rivers and creeks that have only local importance.

After further discussion the House proceeded to vote on the amendment, which, as some were demanded on many of them, but they were all concurred in by strong majorities, and the bill now goes to the President for his signature.

THE ALLOWANCE TO MR. SWITZLER.

The Speaker stated that since the adjournment yesterday he was informed that a division had been called on the adoption of the resolution to pay $5,000 to F. SWITZLER, of Missouri, for his expenses in contesting the seat of Mr. DYNE, of Missouri. He had not heard such call, but he now suggested that the question could be reached by a motion to reconsider and lay on the table.

The motion to reconsider was made, and was laid on the table—yeas 98, nays 31.

MISCELLANEOUS BUSINESS.

Mr. SCOFIELD, from the Naval Committee, reported a bill in relation to enlistments in the Marine Corps, providing that, after the 1st of July, 1870, enlistments shall be for five instead of four years, and authorizing credit for enlistment pay. Passed.

Mr. LOGAN, from the Military Committee, reported back the Senate bill to pay bounties to the First Alabama Cavalry and the First and Second Florida Cavalry. Passed.

Mr. BURNS, of New-York, having declined to serve on the Conference Committee on the Funding bill, Mr. MARSHALL was appointed in his place.

ADDITIONAL DEFICIENCY BILL.

The House then, at 12½, took up the Additional Deficiency bill, covering items to the amount of $1,750,343.

Mr. DAWES appealed to the House not to allow new matter to be added to the bill. The principal item in it was $1,000,000 for the census. Some of the other items had been overlooked in making out estimates and some had arisen from the creation of the new Department of Justice.

An amendment offered by Mr. RANDALL to pay to certain clerks of the House an additional compensation of twenty per cent. for the Thirty-ninth Congress, which had been ordered by a resolution of the House, but not paid, or which they were compelled to refund, provoked a discussion, in the course of which Mr. DAWES declared that he would go to the country and tell the country that the party which is responsible for the expenditures of public money had refused to hold itself up to the point of public economy. He had as much fidelity to party as any living man, but he had more fidelity to the good of the country. There was something above party, and he intended that the country should know on whom the responsibility for extravagance rested. If the House made appropriations to increase the pay of its officials he would withdraw from the Committee of Conference in which for the last ten days he had been trying to impress on the Senate that it was improper and inexpedient at this time, with the heavy taxation resting on the people, to add to raising the compensation of officials of Congress. He had a duty to perform, and he intended to perform it. He did not propose to go to the country with any false pretense that this Congress was economical unless the figures should bear him out.

Mr. BOUTWELL suggested that Mr. DAWES should state that the proposition came from the other side.

Mr. DAWES—Yes, but it cannot succeed unless the majority on this side vote for it.

Mr. PETERS called attention to the fact that there was one member on his side of the House, (meaning himself,) who seconded the motion.

The question was put on agreeing to the amendment making a provision for what the House had agreed to by a resolution of the Thirty-ninth Congress, but which resolution the Treasury officials had refused to execute.

Mr. DAWES remarked that he was not surprised at the gentleman from Maine coming up to the support of his amendment, because the record would bear him out in saying that the gentleman from Maine had never failed to vote for the highest sums and the greatest increase of compensation and salary ever since he had been a member of the House.

Mr. PETERS (breaking in)—That is unqualified by truth and by authority, and is not true. I do not stand here to have such slanderous assertions put on me.

Mr. DAWES—I repeat what I said, and until the gentleman can find on the record a single instance where he has failed to come up to the truth of what I have said, I will not withdraw a word of it. I have served with the gentleman in Congress, the gentleman from Maine has been in season and out of season, always urging, always voting, always speaking publicly, and more frequently privately around the House, urging the largest expenditures, and when the gentleman from Maine charges that I am stating what is not true, he shall have the benefit of this; also, that he has been always in favor of the highest pay.

Mr. PETERS repeated that what the gentleman from Massachusetts had said of him was not true, and that he (Dawes) ought to know it. He had more frequently voted against than for raising salaries, but the gentleman himself had voted for giving larger compensation to the female employes in the various departments, and he defied that gentleman to show any such vote on the record. He had voted against this morning against paying $6,000 to a contestant for a seat, while the gentleman had voted for it. If the gentleman had got as much perception and sense in that as in other matters, he should be ashamed to say to the House that he Mr. (Peters) had given wrongful votes. He denied the foul aspersion.

Mr. RANDALL criticised Mr. DAWES, and said that his course in regard to economy had been that of a man mowing one way and looking another. He was sorry to hear him threaten to resign, but even if he did the House would run on. Notwithstanding the gentleman stood here and played the part of a clown—laughter—and of the Speaker's clown—laughter—he withdraw that expression. [Laughter.]

Mr. DAWES asked pardon of the House if he had used any unparliamentary language, and intimated that he would also apologize to the gentleman from Maine if his demeanor had been such as to deserve it.

Mr. PETERS asked Mr. DAWES whether he did not think that the characterization with which he had attempted to give his (PETERS) conduct was unjust?

Mr. DAWES replied that he had been provoked by the gentleman from Maine to state just exactly what he believed to be true.

Mr. PETERS remarked that he was sorry for the judgment and prejudices of the gentleman.

The amendment was agreed to—24 to 63.

After the vote was taken Mr. PETERS rose and said that he understood that the gentleman from Massachusetts was led into making the remarks in reference to him a few minutes ago by a remark of his (PETERS) which the gentleman regarded as disparaging. He had not had the least intention of doing so or saying anything unparliamentary, and if he was led into doing so he would withdraw it.

Mr. DAWES made the amende honorable on his part. Mr. PETERS said, "and remember the beam of debate, and after the statement of the gentleman from Maine, I with great pleasure withdraw every word I said, and express the profoundest regret that any indiscretion should have led me to utter it, and ask the reporters of the Globe to strike out everything I said.

Mr. DAWES then proceeded with the consideration of the bill.

An amendment offered by Mr. BINGHAM to increase the compensation of the pages of the House was rejected.

Mr. HIGGINS, of New-York, offered an amendment authorizing the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House to devise some system of shortening the official reports in the Globe, and to have such improvement and terminal matter. He said that the proceedings now were so voluminous as to render it impossible for anybody to read them. Columns on columns were taken up with mere discussions as to the order of business of which no record was required. If the system was not corrected, the Globe would soon have to be abolished altogether. The Globe were become unmanageable, not only to the libraries of members of Congress, but even to public libraries. The proceedings were known to the public only through the telegraphic reports, which necessarily gave but an indefinite account of what Congress was doing.

Mr. DAWES said he heartily concurred in what the gentleman from New-York said. The Globe now was utterly worthless because of its bulk, and something would have to be done to reduce it or else it should be abolished altogether. The index of the Globe for this session alone covered four hundred pages.

Mr. BENJAMIN moved an amendment to exclude speeches and parts of speeches not actually delivered.

Mr. VAN WYCK opposed Mr. BENJAMIN's amendment as unfair to members who could not get into their mouths on the floor, and argued that the system of revision now effected an important saving of the time of the House.

Mr. BENJAMIN's amendment was rejected.

Mr. GARFIELD moved an amendment providing that after the present Congress the Globe should not be published at the expense of the United States. He argued that if the Globe were suppressed, the leading newspapers of the country would publish just as much of the proceedings and speeches as were of value to be known. As to the huge triple-column reminiscence, the Globe, it was absolutely a Lethe and Regenlie that consigned everything contained in it to oblivion. It was an oblivious trap. If the poor Homunculus had been speaking for the Congressional Globe, he would not have dared to say, "I shall not all die; a part of me will escape oblivion." The abolition of the Globe would have the effect of making the debates real debates, and the sessions business sessions.

Mr. COX opposed Mr. GARFIELD's amendment, and remarked that that gentleman would not have made the classical speech he had just made if he had not expected it would be published in the Globe. [Laughter.] He believed that the voluminousness of the Globe did not arise so much from the copia legendi as from the fact that Congress had been absorbing all the legislation of the country.

Mr. WOODWARD eulogized the publications of that reports in the Globe, and characterized the telegraphic reports as full of inaccuracies, and libelous that he had requested the reporter to do him the favor never to notice him again.

[The complaint of Mr. WOODWARD to the reporter was not as to the reports telegraphed to New-York, but as to those that appeared in the daily paper in his own town, and because that paper would not after-want publish his remarks in full from the Globe.—Agent Associated Press.]

The discussion was continued by Messrs. HOAR, BINGHAM and DICKEY against the proposed amendments, and then both of them were voted down.

Mr. BUCKLEY offered an amendment appropriating $150,000 for the payment of loyal men in the South who had assisted in taking the last census. Agreed to.

Mr. CLARK, of Kansas, offered an amendment appropriating $80,000 for the removal of the Kansas Indians with their own consent. Agreed to.

The bill then passed.

RATIFICATION OF CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

Mr. BINGHAM, from the Judiciary Committee, reported a bill to regulate the mode of determining the ratification of amendments to the Constitution of the United States.

The first section makes it the duty of the Executive of each State, where it shall appear to have ratified a proposed amendment, to certify forthwith such ratification to the Secretary of State of the United States. The second section makes it unlawful for any State officer to attempt by threats of legal action of such ratification, unless an amendment for the repeal shall have been first proposed by Congress, and directs the Secretary of State not to make a record of such ratification. The third section provides that an attempted repeal of such ratification by State authority, as imprisonment from one to ten years, and fine from $2,000 to $10,000.

Mr. COX objected, and said that the understanding was when the Judiciary Committee had let they assured him that business, that no political matter would be reported.

Mr. BINGHAM denied that there had been any such understanding.

Mr. NIBLACK moved to lay the bill on the table. Negatived—48 to 120.

Mr. BINGHAM moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill.

Mr. WOODWARD asked for five minutes to express his opposition to the bill.

Mr. ELDRIDGE declared that there never was a more flagrant proposition than this bill!

Mr. McNEELY moved that the House adjourn. Negatived.

The rules were then suspended, and the bill was passed by yeas 120 to nays 64.

Mr. WOODWARD asked and obtained leave to have printed in the Globe, the speech which he had intended to make.

RESIGNATION OF JUDICIAL OFFICERS.

Mr. BINGHAM, from the Judiciary Committee, reported the bill authorizing the President to accept the resignation of Judges of any Court of the United States, which was passed.

The bill authorizes the acceptance of the resignation of a Judge who has held his commission not less than ten years, and who, by physical or other causes, is permanently disabled from performing his duties efficiently; the Judge to have thereafter, during his natural life, the same salary that was payable to him at the time of his resignation. The bill to be confined to Judges who hold their office during good behavior.

COTTON SEIZURES IN 1865.

Mr. BINGHAM, from the Judiciary Committee, reported the Joint resolution on directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the lawful owners the net proceeds of all the cotton seized after the 20th of June, 1865, such seizures having been made in relation to the adjudication of the Treasury Department, and after the surrender of the rebel armies, and the proclamation of amnesty.

Mr. BUTLER, of Massachusetts, made the point of order that the bill made an appropriation, and must be referred to the Committee of the Whole.

The Speaker sustained the point of order, and the bill was so referred.

The House then, at 4½ o'clock, adjourned.

THE CITY WHARVES.

Another Meeting of the Dock Commissioners—More Plans for Improving the Piers.

The Commissioners of Public Docks met yesterday afternoon, at 2 o'clock. Mr. S. P. SHERBURNE presented a series of plans and specifications looking toward a better system of sewerage for Manhattan Island. The plan seems but a modification of those heretofore presented, and embraces a number of details, among which is a main sewer to run around the entire island, from Spuyten Duyvil Creek to the Battery, at which point a reservoir will be placed. A subterranean channel will convey the contents at each rise and fall of the tide to a point at or near Ellis Island.

Mr. C. H. ISLEBERTAL submitted a report of a series of plans which he had made, looking toward a better system of dock sewerage. His plans are essentially the same as those already presented. His plan proposes the erection of a number of piers in the middle of the river. The piers extending from the Battery to Cortlandt-street to be called section one; from Cortlandt-street to Canal to be section two, &c. In Hudson-street he proposes to erect a number of fireproof buildings for the storage of inflammable materials. The docks, piers, wharves and bulkheads are to be under the immediate control of the merchants of this City, they to have the right to let and sub-let, under the direction of the proper officers. All appointments of harbor-masters and dock-masters are to be under their exclusive control. The harbor-masters to be thoroughly acquainted with the duties of the profession, and must have been sea-faring men. By Mr. ISLEBERTAL's plan, a railroad, to be run by steam, will also form an essential part of the scheme for the rapid transportation of merchandise from one warehouse to another. The grade being what is denominated dead level, but a small amount of steam will be necessary.

Mr. CHARLES POSTER had a design for the foundations of a structure with great solidity in deep water, without coffer-dams. His plan would be to use an immersed coffer, or caisson, as now employed for the foundations of the Brooklyn bridge abutments. He entered extensively into detail upon the mode of construction.

JAMES C. LYON proposed piers of granite along the river line, 1,200 feet long, 100 feet wide, interested midway at right angles by others of the same width, running from the bulkhead, through which should run a sewer into the river. The entrance between river piers, leading to the basins thus formed, should be 100 feet wide. The piers to be of iron, with iron columns, and upon them should be warehouses. Details were given regarding profits to be derived by the City from the plan.

Opening of the New-Haven, Middletown and Willimantic Railroad—History of the Enterprise.

A large party of gentlemen, filling two trains, one of sixteen and the other of fourteen cars, and including the members of the Legislature of Connecticut, Lieut.-Gov. HOTCHKISS and the State officers of that State, Mayor LEWIS of New-Haven, and the members of the Common Council of that city, besides a number of invited guests, started from New-Haven at 2½ P. M. on Thursday last, for the purpose of making a trip over the New-Haven, Middletown and Willimantic Railroad, over which the first public train yesterday passed as far as Middletown, to which point at present, the rails are laid, a distance of twenty-four miles. After riding for about one hour and a half the party reached the suburbs of Middletown, where a large crowd of the denizens of the "land of steady habits" was in waiting to receive them, their advent being greeted by a salvo of artillery from the Douglas Battery of Middletown. A procession, containing the members of the Legislature, Ex-Gov. HOTCHKISS, and the State officers, the Mayors and Common Councils of New-Haven and Middletown, was then formed, and, officered by Marshals in all the glory of immense rosettes, took up its march for the spacious grounds of O. V. COFFIN, Esq., where a plentiful collation was provided, long tables being laid for the accommodation of about 2,000 people. To these edibles, washed down with copious draughts of iced lemonade, full justice was done by the hungry crowd. Short addresses were then made by Ex-Gov. DOUGLASS, of Middletown; DAVID LYMAN, Esq., the president of the new road; R. W. WRIGHT, private secretary to Gov. ENGLISH; A. A. BURNHAM, Secretary of the House of Representatives of Connecticut; N. D. SPERRY, Postmaster of New-Haven, and Gen. SERRILL. All these congratulated the citizens on the opening of the road, thus far, and predicted that when completed to Willimantic, it will add immensely to the prosperity of the State. The hope was expressed, also, that the Common Council of New-Haven would promptly vote $500,000, as they were pledged to do on the completion of the road to Middletown, to assist in the further prosecution of the enterprise. This road, which was yesterday formally opened, was projected, about twenty-five years ago, by Mr. EDWIN P. JOHNSON, of Middletown, now consulting engineer of the North Pacific Railroad, CHAS. R. ARSOP, BENJAMIN DOUGLASS, AUGUSTUS RUSSELL. The proposed route was surveyed by Mr. CURTISS, assisted by THOMAS McDONOUGH, in the years 1844-5, and pronounced in every way feasible for building the contemplated road. A charter was then obtained from the Connecticut Legislature authorizing the newly-formed Company to construct a draw-bridge over the Connecticut River at Middletown, but at that time the hill at Willimantic was opposed, and for a time the proposed enterprise was given up. About eight years ago, however, the new Company was merged into the Boston, Hartford and Erie Railroad Company, with whose road it is intended to connect at Willimantic, thus making, as nearly as may be, an Erie road to New-Haven. In 1861, Gen. SERRILL brought the feasibility of the proposed road to the notice of DAVID LYMAN, Esq., of Middlefield, a prominent and wealthy citizen of Middlesex County, who at once entered into the scheme with zest, and has been above all others the most earnest in bringing the road thus far toward completion. After five years of effort, Mr. LYMAN succeeded in getting the necessary legislative authority for the construction of the road, the right to build a draw-bridge over the Connecticut, and Congress, in 1868, confirmed it. The first spadeful of earth was moved in May, 1869, and although thirteen months only have passed, and immense masses of rock had to be cut through, the rails have been laid to Middletown. Of the twenty-nine miles between Middletown and Willimantic, eighteen have been graded and are ready for the rails. In one year it is anticipated that full communication with Boston will be complete. The road, passes through a fine farming country—New-Haven, Middlesex and Windham Counties—and will afford the farmers additional facilities for getting their produce to market. When completed, this road will shorten the route to Boston by twenty-seven miles.

Convictions and Sentences in the Court of General Sessions.

At the opening of the Court of General Sessions, yesterday, before Recorder HACKETT, the trial was resumed in the case of JOHN J. O'DONNELL, indicted on a charge of having stolen a gold watch of the value of $600 from a Philadelphia merchant, named HARDING. DENNIS KEROE testified that he saw the complainant enter the saloon, kept by the prisoner at the corner of Grand and Elm streets, and that he subsequently saw him remove his watch and take it behind the bar. Witnesses were introduced to prove good character for O'DONNELL, after which some policemen were called by the prosecution for the purpose of giving rebutting evidence. The accused was subsequently found guilty, and was remanded until Monday to give him an opportunity, if he deemed it, to return the stolen watch previous to his sentence.

PATRICK POGERTY pleaded guilty to petit larceny from the person of ELIZABETH RAESS, on the 26th of May. He was sent to the State Prison for five years.

ALBERT EHLERS pleaded guilty to the embezzlement of $100, belonging to CHARLES HENRICK. He was sent to the State Prison for two years and six months.

JOHN REILLY, charged with robbing and outraging SUSAN BIRNIE, at One Hundred and Sixteenth-street, between Third and Fourth avenues, on the night of June 21, pleaded guilty to the charge of robbery, and was sent to the State Prison for seven years.

The Court then adjourned until Monday morning.

The Visiting Firemen.

The New-Orleans firemen occupied their time, yesterday, in visiting various points of interest in the City, each as his inclination suited, and returned to the Astor House in the afternoon, where a meeting was held to consider the challenge which had been given to race. These men have been in the practice of running to fires and getting their apparatus ready for work while going at full speed. They consider that they can beat any body of men in this City at that kind of exercise, but they are not willing to race for money. If any fire organization desires to race with them they stand ready to accept the challenge, and will then go into training for the contest. As yet no company has accepted their offer.

The New-Orleans men have determined to rest for a day or two. This evening they will go to Fisk's Opera-House, and on Monday to some other place of amusement. On Tuesday they expect to go to Long Branch, on the invitation of JAMES FISK, JR.

Smuggling Brass Jewelry.

At the examination of LUIGI RAFFEIO, an Italian, yesterday, before Commissioner SHIELDS, on a charge of having smuggled a large quantity of jewelry into this port, on board of the steamer Perugia, a Custom-house broker named ACKERSON, who was called as a witness for the defense, said that the Customs' officials frequently allowed persons to reclaim smuggled goods, which had been seized, after paying the import duties. It appeared that the jewelry which was found in the possession of Raffeio was brass, and consequently worth first. A decision will be given in the case, by the Commissioner, today.

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

There was no business transacted at the Exchange, yesterday, and the room presented a deserted appearance. The sales during the week have been few and far between, no property of any note having been disposed of, while the record will show fewer transactions than for the same period of time for many months past.

Today the only sale to take place is that of seventy-five villa plots by JAMES M. MILLER, of Hurlburg Park, New-Rochelle. On Tuesday next, A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & BRO. have another sale of New-Jersey property, and on Wednesday ALDRIDGE & WOOD will offer some valuable houses and lots located for Jersey City. Both these sales, the sale of the sale for advertised for next week, will be noticed more at length on Monday.

Of country property offered at private sale attention is called to the following, full particulars in regard to which may be obtained from the parties whose names are appended: Residence and grounds, Northfield Station, Orange, N. J., HAMILTON & WALLIS, No. 3 Nassau-street. Villas, villa sites and farm acreage, E. S. BLAKEMAN & SHIPP, No. 320 Broadway, and A. D. MELLICK, Jr., & Bro., No. 6 Pine-street. ### $600,000 due in 1897, bearing interest at 7 per cent. per annum, payable on the 1st days of January and July, at the Bank of America, New-York.

The line of this Road extends from Henderson, on the Ohio River, to the State line of Tennessee, passing through the coal fields of Western Kentucky, and forming important connections with Chicago, Nashville, the South and East. Sixty-three miles are completed at a cost of $2,000,000 raised almost entirely from stock subscriptions, leaving only thirty-three miles to be built, of which twenty-three miles are now graded, and under contract. The first and only mortgage of all the property and franchises of the Company is for One Million of Dollars, payable as above. The proceeds of the sale will be applied by J. Edgar Thomson, Esq., of Philadelphia, the Trustee of the Company, to finish the work, for which purpose, with the other resources at command, they are amply sufficient. The net earnings of the Road are now quite large, and by the middle of June the coal fields will be reached, which will increase them materially. There is no reasonable doubt that the extensive local traffic of this Road, added to its important connections, will make it abundantly remunerative to the stockholders. $600,000 of this Loan have already been negotiated, and the remainder will be sold, for the present, at 90 and accrued interest, at which rate they constitute a safe and desirable investment.

Further particulars will be furnished on application to

HARLEM EXTENSION BONDS.

The undersigned offer for sale, at eighty and interest, two hundred and fifty bonds of $1,000 each, issued by the Harlem Extension Railroad Company.

These bonds are secured by a mortgage on a lease of $600,000, made by the Harlem Extension Railroad Company for the purpose of constructing the equipment of their road, and are secured by a first mortgage on that equipment, made to the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New-York. They bear interest at the rate of seven per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, free of Government tax, and are payable on March 1, 1891.

The Harlem Extension Railroad connects with the Harlem Railroad at Chatham Four Corners and extends from that point to Redhook.

In view of this close connection with the Harlem Railroad, and of the steadily-increasing traffic between New-York and the North, it is believed that the above are the cheapest investment now offered to the public.

ST. LOUIS.

The Growth of the City—Lost Opportunities—Chicago's Foresight—The Wealth of the City—Buildings of the Bridge.

From Our Own Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, MO., Wednesday, June 29, 1870.

The rapid increase of our country can scarcely be estimated by ordinary statistics. The statement that we have so many millions of people and are increasing in a certain ratio, may excite admiration and a general indefinite astonishment; but the real rapidity of our growth can only be properly estimated by an actual inspection of the cities which have sprung up as if by magic in the newer sections of the country. Here upon the banks of the great Mississippi, twelve hundred miles from the Atlantic and an equal distance from the Gulf of Mexico, stands a city which contains a greater population than New-York did forty years ago, and is further advanced in all the elements of social greatness than was the Metropolis at that day, having a greater number of commodious and imposing ware houses and counting-rooms, more avenues of travel and business, often connecting it with a wider extent of territory, and larger and more astonishing social institutions.

THE GROWTH OF ST. LOUIS.

The growth of this city was scarcely perceptible till 1840. Ages ago it was founded by the sagacity and enterprise of the French, during the era of their colonial colonial achievements. The greatness of the distance from the father-land, and the difficulty of reaching such a remote point, together with the long-continued struggles between the rival nations of France and England, prevented any rapid growth of the Louisiana colony. After the transfer of this colony to the United States, the growth of population for many years was too slow to influence this valley. Hence it resulted that, as late as 1840, St. Louis was still a village of no great size. But when the great wave of population from the Eastern States and from Europe poured into this great valley, its influence upon the growth of this city was felt. Her growth until the war was marvelous, and the territory which became tributary to her commercial enterprise was constantly enlarging. The multitude of steamers touching at her levee traded from New-Orleans upon the south to the remote north in Minnesota, and the far off regions of the Upper Missouri. The vast valley of this network of rivers seemed destined to pay tribute to the enterprise of the merchants of this city, and they reposed so securely in the confident assurance that this vast traffic was certainly theirs, that they were indifferent to the efforts made to divert it to other channels.

CHICAGO AND ST. LOUIS.

The construction of railroads created a new era in the tendencies of trade. Chicago early saw the advantages she would acquire by the development of her railroad system, and gave all her strength and influence in this direction. Every iron road brought population to the section of the country of which Chicago was the center, and increased its trade; so that almost before St. Louis became aware of the fact, her northern rival had beaten her in the race. The occurrence of the war increased these tendencies. The disturbances in this neighborhood isolated St. Louis and almost cut off its trade, and thus left Chicago free to enlarge her commerce, an opportunity she was not slow to use. After the conclusion of the war the padlock which had been imposed upon this city was removed, and things returned to their natural course. St. Louis gradually regained her former elevated position, and is rapidly moving to the front.

TENURE OF PROPERTY.

One of the peculiarities impressed upon this city by its early French inhabitants is seen in the tenure of property. A large portion of the real estate of the city belongs to the estates of the old inhabitants. These have generally refused to sell, and have adhered to the system of leases. From this system it has resulted that nearly all the business houses are built upon leased ground. Whenever these leases are renewed the property is estimated at fabulous prices. A marked case of this is furnished in a large block of elegant stores now building on Fourth-street. The ground belongs to the Glasgow estate and comprises eleven lots, having a total frontage of 225 feet by a depth of 120 feet, the rear resting upon a broad alley. This piece of ground was purchased about twenty-six years ago, by Mr. GLASGOW, for $3,000. Now it is considered worth $1,000 a front foot, and is leased at that valuation, the lessees paying six per cent. annually upon the valuation; and at the expiration of the lease of thirty years, surrendering the building. In fact the two lots on the corner of 6t. Charles-street are leased by a dry-goods firm at an annual rental of $6,000, and the magnificent store they are erecting is to be given to the owner at the expiration of the lease. Upon the same liberal terms nearly all of the business property of the city is leased. The wonder is that any persons are to be found who are unwilling to be the owners of real estate in fee simple, and also that any persons are to be found who are so ambitious to build up the interests of landlords as to assume and fulfill such obligations, especially as this little spot does not comprise the whole frontage of the Mississippi River. But the unsophisticated observer will find in this Western region much more to surprise him, not the least of which is that notwithstanding the greatness of this country and the immense territory appropriated to the site of its numerous cities, ground appears exceedingly scarce, and that the smallest portion can only be obtained by the payment of fabulous prices.

THE FUTURE OF THE CITY.

The position of this city, at the gateway of the trade of this immense inter-continental valley, and upon the direct route to the Pacific, and one-third the distance to San Francisco, gives it a commanding importance. This is being constantly evinced by the network of railroads which the intelligent enterprise of the citizens of this State is constructing, nearly all of which have their ultimate terminus in this city. What it may become in the future, none can predict. But all anticipate for her a career of great success.

THE BRIDGE.

Work upon the bridge is progressing with regularity, although the eyes of many spectators behold little of it as yet, because it is entirely sub-aqueous. The work of building up these piers from the solid rock, 111 feet beneath the surface of the water, 80 feet of which are occupied by the sands deposited by the current, is a great labor. It has already cost the lives of several men, and, if human life, in this progressive age, is not allowed to stand in the way of the achievement of any great enterprise. When this gigantic work shall be completed, it will be a convenient means of crossing the great barrier to travel, and will increase to a wonderful degree the amount of travel and freight by all the various routes concentering here.

On Wednesday last, says the Philadelphia Telegraph, of July 8, Commodore ROBT. RITCHIE, of the United States Navy, died at his residence, No. 1,116 Pine-street, in this city. A Foolhardy Experiment and the Result—A Man and Horse Killed.

From the Pittsburg Gazette, July 6.

A fatal accident occurred yesterday morning near Fleming Station, on the Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago Railroad. It was the result of sheer recklessness. About 7 o'clock RALEIGH WILKE, driver for Messrs. RIDDLE & FOUST, of the Acid Works, was driving along the road near the station, in company with another man. WILKE wanted to cross the track, but was warned by his companion not to make the attempt, as the express train was due at that moment. He persisted, however, and the adviser jumped from the vehicle, leaving the driver to go it alone. WILKE continued on his course, but lost his life. Just as he was on the track the Wheeling express rounded the curve in the road, and in the next instant the wagon was demolished, one of the horses thrown to one side and killed, and the driver ran over and cut almost as pieces. The remains were dragged some distance before the train could be stopped. It is said the usual signals were given by the engineer on the locomotive, but he was prevented from seeing the wagon on the track on account of the curve in the road at that place.

The remains were taken to the Acid Works and word sent to the Coroner, but at last accounts he had not held an inquest.

MELANCHOLY SUICIDE.

Drowning of Mr. James W. Lingard, the Actor—His Troubles, Trials and Final Desperation.

Mention was made in yesterday's TIMES that fears were entertained that Mr. JAMES W. LINGARD, the theatrical manager and actor, had committed suicide. The supposition proved correct, as the body of the man found in the North River, near Bank-street, on Thursday, was yesterday identified as that of Mr. LINGARD. The remains were removed to the Morgue, and subsequently surrendered to the relatives, who buried them under the auspices of Masonry.

It is now supposed that Mr. LINGARD leaped from one of the piers near where his body was recovered. The motive for his seeking a suicidal death appears to have been pecuniary and domestic difficulties.

Mr. LINGARD was forty-seven years of age, a native of England, and well known in theatrical circles as the manager of the New Bowery Theatre, which was destroyed by fire in 1866. He was at one time a member of the company in BARNUM'S old Museum, and achieved considerable reputation by the performance of the character of Uncle Tom in Mrs. STOWE'S drama, and in the year 1863 assumed the management of the Old Bowery theater with GEORGE L. FOX, the comedian. They then leased the New Bowery Theater, which was built for them by Judge WHITING, from the materials of the old Broadway Theater, which was pulled down in 1862. Mr. LINGARD was well known on the stage, and by his rendition of the character of Bluskins, in the "Jack Sheppard" drama, and other characters. When the theater was burned down, in 1866, Mr. LINGARD was sole lessee, Mr. FOX having secured the Old Bowery, and as he was wholly uninsured, he became a ruined man. Since then the deceased endeavored to retrieve his fortunes, and leased the Theater Comique for a few weeks, where he sank the funds secured to him by benefits and his friends. That failure completed Mr. LINGARD'S misfortunes, and he lost all hope. His domestic troubles were of comparatively recent and unexplained origin, and they probably disheartened him so much that he sought relief in death.

Heavy Burglary in East Orange, N. J.—Two Thousand Dollars Lost.

Mr. H. C. MEYER, of Grove-street, East Orange, N. J., left his house about 7 o'clock on Thursday evening, for the purpose of attending church. During his absence the dwelling was entered and robbed of its most valuable contents. The burglars took a large box of silverware and jewelry belonging to a neighbor named BOYCE. The articles were the wedding presents of Mrs. BOYCE, and were left there for safe keeping during the temporary absence of Mr. and Mrs. BOYCE. MEYER had a gold watch, repeater worth $400, and his wife a handsome gold chain and other valuables. The entire loss cannot fall far short of $2,000. The box containing the silver-ware, &c., was afterward found, having been thrown under a tree. A servant girl seeing a man in the house gave the alarm, and the box being heavy was abandoned. Detectives are after the burglars.

When arraigned at the Police Court, he had no other excuse than that the children in the house annoyed him, and he was held in $500 bail to answer; as it was supposed at the time that the girl's injuries had received fatal injuries. The infant indeed, apparently recovered from the effects of the fall, but yesterday it was taken suddenly ill and shortly died. As it was presumed that the death was the result of internal injuries caused by VATH, a warrant was issued for his arrest, and an inquest will be held by Coroner KEENAN.

Fatal Accident on the Erie Railroad.

As the train No. 2 on the Erie Road, due at Paterson at 2:30 P. M., yesterday, was approaching the trestle-bridge, a quarter of a mile west of Hohokus, the engineer caught sight of three persons on the bridge just ahead. He at once whistled "brakes down," and two of the men stepped off the track, but the third was caught by the cow-catcher, and thrown twenty feet in the air and off the bridge. He was instantly killed. The accident having occurred in Bergen County, the remains are now awaiting an inquest from a Coroner at that county. Extensive Fire at Melrose.

The dwelling of FRANK HOFFER, in Denman-street, Melrose, was discovered to be on fire between 1 and 2 o'clock yesterday morning. Officer RICE gave immediate alarm and the firemen responded promptly, but before the flames could be subdued, the house in which the fire originated, also one on each side of it, were entirely consumed. One of the latter belonged to JOHN STORR and the other to EDWARD YOUNG. All three houses were partially insured. A boy about twelve years old, the son of Mr. YOUNG, jumped from the third-story window to a piazza below in order to save his life, and fortunately escaped serious injury, and a child which had been left in an upper story of one of the houses was rescued by a young girl, who risked her own life to save it. Some suppose that the fire was the act of an incendiary, but it is believed that a barrel of lime, which Mr. HOFFER had obtained to use in an enlargement of his accommodations, got wet and set fire to the barrel, and communicated with some shavings lying near it.
